NAZI 'ULTIMATUM' SENT TO BELGIUM

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Nov. 6 (INS)—Confidential Belgian sources revealed to International News Service that the Belgian Crown Council, called under chairmanship of King Leopold today, is being held for the purpose of answering the most serious communication yet sent by Germany to Belgium since the European war began.

Belgian circles described the communication as being "in the nature of an ultimatum," and said it was delivered by the German ambassador at Brussels to Belgian Foreign Minister Paul Spaak on Saturday in a note asking for definite assurance in the matter of Belgium's neutrality.

The note warned that Germany would take it as an "unfriendly act" if Belgium entered any kind of new commitments, even strictly defensive ones.

OFFICIALS ALARMED

It also requested Belgium to make her position towards Holland more clear, which is interpreted to mean that Germany wants Belgium to do nothing in the way of calling for allied help, even if the Germans were to occupy Holland.

Delivery of the note caused profound uneasiness in Belgian government circles and the Cabinet at a meeting Saturday night decided that the situation was too serious to be handled without reference to the King.

The monarch accordingly was asked to preside at the governmental council today.

King Leopold's attitude is said to be most firm. It is understood that Belgium's reply is likely to be about as follows:

- 1—Belgium will continue to maintain strict neutrality.
- 2—Belgium will enter new international commitments only if she feels threatened.
- 3—Belgium's relations with Holland are based solely upon "considerations of security."

'Super-Gestapo' New Nazi Plan

PARIS, Nov. 6 (INS)—In a dispatch from the "German frontier," the newspaper Le Temps reported today that Heinrich Himmler, chief of the German secret police, has ordered creation of a Nazi "super-gestapo."

The new organization will be composed of 120 members and will have the task of watching members of the regular gestapo, or secret police, the paper said.

Germany Insists On Surrender of at Least Flint Cargo

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Nov. 6 (INS)—Germany today renewed its diplomatic pressure upon Norway for settlement of the City of Flint case in a manner favorable to the Reich, according to reliable indications.

Informed circles indicated that the German government still insists upon surrender of the American freighter—or at least its cargo—to Germany.

These moves followed Norway's rejection of the German protest to Oslo against release of the City of Flint to its American crew and in turn of the German prize crew at Haugesund.

A note containing the Norwegian rejection of the Reich's protest and demands for return of the vessel and liberation of the prize crew has been received in Berlin.

According to indications emanating from authentic quarters, both Germany and Norway were standing pat on their positions regarding the City of Flint up to noon today, with diplomats and jurists of both sides arguing unceasingly.

NAZIS MAY 'CLIMB DOWN'

Some circles professed to see a "faint possibility" that Germany might climb down and permit the City of Flint to return to the United States on the basis of the new American neutrality law and

RUSSIA HITS ARMS REPEAL; ASKS LABOR TO STOP WAR

MOSCOW, Nov. 6 (AP)—The Communist International today attacked the "American Bourgeois" for repeal of the arms embargo and called on workers of Great Britain and France to go against those who favor continuation of imperialistic war.

It issued a sharply-worded manifesto, occupying four front-page columns in Pravda, Communist party newspaper, as the U. S. S. R. began a three-day celebration of the 22d anniversary of the Communist revolution.

"The bourgeois of the so-called neutral countries," the Internationale said, warm their hands near the fire of war. Under the mask of neutrality they become rich on military supplies.

"The American bourgeois, very interested in further developing the war, repeats the embargo on the export of arms in order to secure huge profits to the kings of the munitions industry."

The manifesto, signed by the Internationale's executive committee, urged the workers of the world to unite to "defend the Chinese people, to go against those who favor continuation of war and unmask them as helpers of imperialists."

Wives and mothers were told to "demand that their sons come back from the front."

Britain and France were accused of oppression in India, Indo-China and Arabia and of "keeping half the world in the chains of colonial slavery."

"The bankers in London and Paris will preserve the worst reactionary regimes in Europe," the manifesto added.

"The Italian bourgeois waits only for a convenient moment to throw itself on the oppressed and have its share of the spoils."

The statement praised Soviet Russia's power and said that "when the Polish state ceased to exist the Soviets gave a helping hand to their brothers in the western Ukraine and White Russia, taking 13,000,000 out of war and delivering them from oppression."

War Diary

66th Day

On the Front—Action on the Western Front remained quiet again today, according to official announcements from the French and the Germans. Taking advantage of a few hours of sunlight, Nazi air patrols became active but not much action took place.

On the Sea, In the Air—Norway apparently had her hands full of the City of Flint today, but stood firm in rejecting German demands that the American freighter be returned to that country. Norway was hopeful in the meantime that the ship clears port at Bergen before the issue with Germany develops. Captain Joseph A. Gairnard in a radio talk in Bergen, broadcast in this country, told of his ship's journey. A new aspect of the war was seen in the general belief prevailing in France that Germany is now suspected of attempting to close European supply sources to Britain and France to offset the Allied blockade.

Behind the Front—H. R. Knickerbocker, in Paris, reveals that Berlin has sent a sharp note to Belgium, amounting almost to an ultimatum, demanding definite assurance of Belgium's neutrality. The adventurous saga of the American freighter City of Flint remained the chief center of attraction on the international stage today, as far as the United States is concerned, and at the same time threatened to produce a first-class diplomatic tangle between warring Germany and neutral Norway.

Panama May Lease U. S. Ships

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—The United States Lines, banned by the neutrality act from European belligerent ports, was reported today ready to apply to the Maritime Commission to transfer nine of its eleven transatlantic vessels to Panama registry.

Published reports said this step was planned so the U. S. Lines could obtain a foothold in the European trade under a foreign flag until it became possible to resume its normal American flag services to the now prohibited ports. The ships involved were said to be two 13,869-ton passenger liners, President Roosevelt and President Harding, and seven 7500-ton cargo-passenger carriers—American Banker, American Farmer, American Importer, American Merchant, American Shipper, American Trader and American Traveler.

12 Injured in Wreck Of Crack Hub Train

Three Pullman sleepers, a mail car and baggage car were overturned today and four other cars were derailed when the Chicago-to-Boston express train left the rails at a 50-miles-an-hour clip, three miles east of Westfield.

At least 12 passengers were injured, six so severely they were taken to hospitals in Springfield and Westfield.

The victims included a young Medford mother and her three-year-old son.

Of 63 passengers on the train, some were still asleep and others were dressing or at breakfast as the accident occurred.

With a terrific grinding and jolting which threw many from their feet car after car careened off the track, lurched along the roadbed and toppled against an embankment.

SCENE OF CONFUSION
Groans of the injured, screams of hysterical women and shouts of members of the train crew, rescuing the victims, combined to make the scene one of wild confusion for nearly an hour.

While doctors among the passengers were treating the injured and calming others who were near collapse from shock and excitement, police and hospital ambulances were racing to the scene from Springfield and Westfield.

AID RUSHES TO SCENE
The accident occurred in the Trap Rock section of Westfield, near the Westfield state sanatorium.

Doctors and nurses from that institution hurried to the wreck to offer their services.

Railroad officials, after receiving a report from Engineer Frank Toms, of Albany, who was injured, said the derailment was apparently caused by dropping of an equalizer, a part of the running gear of the engine tender.

The tender and all nine other cars of the train left the track. The baggage car, mail car, and three Pullman sleepers, in that order, were overturned. Two other Pullman sleepers, a diner and a Pullman lounge car stayed upright.

The derailment occurred just as the train, bowling along at 50-miles-an-hour speed, rounded a slight curve approaching a two-mile straightaway near the Westfield-West Springfield line.

The Medford mother injured is Mrs. Mary Gallagher, 29, of Whittier road. She is the wife of Asst. City Solicitor Mark E. Gallagher of Medford.

Teachers Deny 'Drive' on Kane

Striking back at Mayor William E. Kane of Woburn, who charged that teachers throughout the state were backing a move, aimed at defeating Kane's bid for re-election, Hugh Nixon of Melrose, secretary of the Massachusetts Teachers' Federation, today termed the allegations "just so much poppycock."

Mayor Kane had declared that $2500 was being raised, ostensibly for funds for a Supreme Court appeal on his slashing of Woburn teacher's salaries, but that the money was being mainly used to hurt his chances at the polls.

Witness Tells of Wreck

A scene of wild confusion, with screaming passengers climbing desperately through car windows, was described today by a Westfield man who saw the Boston & Albany flier "New England States" plunge from the rack in the Trap Rock section three miles east of Westfield.

Driving to his filling station only 100 yards from the scene of the accident, John E. Tucker, 52, of East Main st., Westfield, was just passing by the train on its nearby right of way when the crash occurred.

"I heard a screech of metal against metal, and I saw something drop from the rear of the tender," Tucker said.

"Suddenly the rail under the first car seemed to buckle and twist, and the car plunged off the track, with the others following, while the engine and the tender remained on the rails.

"Every car but the last one careened off the track and was thrown against an embankment beside the right of way. The cars came to rest at about a 45-degree angle—and only the embankment kept things from being more serious."

"Some were climbing out of the windows and others were fighting their way out of the doors," he reported.

"There were several Boston doctors on board the train, coming back from a convention, and they immediately began to treat the injured."

"I saw several passengers who appeared to have broken bones. Others were streaming blood from cuts, and all appeared badly shaken up."

GIRL SUICIDE'S LETTER CLUE IN LOVE CULT QUIZ

Penned by the pitiful hand of a schoolgirl suicide, in her grave now nearly a week, a last "love letter" came to light today as the Marblehead school committee investigated charges that a strange love cult exists in Marblehead high school.

With a woman school teacher assertedly involved, the school board studied other letters passing between the teacher and 15-year-old Florence Bigelow, whose suicide was listed a week ago as "a mystery."

Tonight the school board, which held a meeting on the case until 2 a. m. today, will meet again, and the Boston Evening American learned, a woman prominent in town parent-teachers' activities will demand action.

MOTHER FINDS LETTER

The last letter apparently written by the schoolgirl was found by her mother and a neighbor in an attic room the girl used as a retreat.

Unfinished, the letter said: "Dear Darling: I wish we could be together today."

"You would not let me do to you what I let you do to me? You told me that you would not tell anybody . . ."

Today the girl's mother said she

Picks Wrong Jug, Dies in Flames

LEWISBURG, Pa., Nov. 6 (AP)—Burns proved fatal today for a 69-year-old father who drank gasoline by mistake for wine and then spit it out on a hot stove.

Mrs. Austin Burd said her husband picked up the wrong jug. Flame leaped up as he spit out the gasoline, igniting his clothing.

3 Small Children Burned to Death

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 6 (AP)—Three small children burned to death here in a fire which destroyed an old inn converted into a dwelling.

SANITY TEST FOR BRIDE KILLER

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 6—White-faced and drawn, Walter R. Hibberd, 20-year-old knife-slayer of his eight-day bride, pleaded innocent to a charge of murder in district court today and was held without bail for a ten-day mental examination by State alienists.

Funeral services for his bride, Caroline Chadburne Hovey Hibberd, 18, were scheduled this afternoon, with Dr. Owen Whitman Eames, who married her Oct. 27, officiating, but Hibberd was barred from attending, although he pleaded that he be permitted to go. Burial will be in Lyman, Me.

The courtroom was crowded, and spectators milled around the corridors as Hibberd was brought before Judge William J. Granfield.

He did not say a word during the proceedings. The plea was entered for him by his attorney, John H. Madden.

Judge Granfield ordered Hibberd remanded to the Hampden County jail where state psychiatrists will examine him under the law requiring mental tests for defendants in capital cases. Nov. 16 was set as a hearing date. If found sane, Hibberd would be held for the grand jury.

Hibberd, once treated by a psychiatrist for a nervous disorder allegedly confessed he "got the urge to kill" and slew his wife with a hunting knife while she lay in bed, then mutilated her body, fled to Brattleboro, Vt., where he surrendered to police.

WHILE the funeral of 18-year-old Caroline Hovey Hibberd, shown here, slain by her husband of eight days, was scheduled to be held in Lyman, Me., today, the 20-year-old youth, Walter Hibberd, was not allowed to attend the rites. He was held for a sanity test.

SEN. PITTMAN WARNS JAPAN TRADE BAN LOOMS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—A prediction that the 1940 Congress might follow up the administration's neutrality program, now in full operation, by authorizing economic pressure against Japan was made today by legislative leaders.

Chairman Pittman (D.) of Nevada, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said that unless relations with Tokyo improve before the Japanese-American commercial treaty expires Jan. 26, Congress undoubtedly would enact his resolution empowering the President to embargo "any or all" exports to Japan.

"It is entirely fair that Japan should be warned of the idea of January," Pittman said. "Her entire attitude in China has been in total disregard of the rights of the United States and other countries."

Pittman was in the small group of congressmen Saturday who saw President Roosevelt sign the Neutrality Bill repealing the arms embargo and setting up a "cash and carry" system of trade with warring nations.

The legislation does not apply to the undeclared Sino-Japanese conflict, however, because President Roosevelt never has found formally that a state of war exists in the Orient.

After signing the neutrality measure, the Chief Executive immediately exercised the discretionary powers it gave him to designate most European waters as a combat area which American ships and travelers could not enter.

He also ordered that belligerent submarines keep away from American ports, except in cases of emergency.

By signing the bill, Mr. Roosevelt cleared the way for a flood of arms orders from Europe's belligerents, especially Great Britain and France. Estimates of initial purchases from those two powers have run between $500,000,000 and $1,000,000,000.

All the goods will have to be transported in foreign ships, for the President defined as the combat area a broad zone extending north from Spain around Great Britain and Ireland to the Norwegian coast south of Bergen.

Sorry, No Mail, Phone or C.-O. D. Orders

Discovery by police that William J. DuWors, 28-year-old East Boston contractor, missing since Wednesday, had cashed a $3500 check and carried heavy life insurance, today sent detectives checking on new angles concerning his mysterious disappearance.

Mrs. Julia DuWors, his wife, mother of three children, at her home in Prescott st., East Boston, begged police to press the search for her husband.

She said he left Wednesday for either Rhode Island or New Bedford to confer with government officials regarding plans for constructing a new postoffice building in a town somewhere in the Narragansett Bay region.

She has not heard from him since.

Rhode Island state police and coast guards, tracing the young contractor's movements, said his auto was found parked near Plum Beach, in North Kingstown, R. I., near the new Sauntertown-Jamestown bridge, now under construction.

The auto remains in police custody.

Persons at Plum Beach told police DuWors rowed out into Narragansett Bay in a small boat, which was later found on the shore of Jamestown Island. A brief case containing personal papers of the contractor was discovered on a gunwale of the boat.

Later, according to a report of the Jamestown, R. I. police, a man claiming to be DuWors cashed a $3500 check.

How he left the island, however, was not immediately learned.

Finds 'Hubby' Wed; Wins Annulment

Far from being a widower, as he had told her when they were married, her "husband" has a wife living in California and a son in his teens, Susan L. Gorman, of Hampden st., Roxbury, today told Judge John V. Mahoney in Suffolk Probate Court.

Nor is the "husband's" name William N. Clark, as he also told her at the time of the wedding in June, 1937, but is actually Wilfred Borden, Miss Gorman declared.

Her testimony and the identification of the man, day clerk at the Salvation Army hotel in Washington st., South End, were supported by the son, Clements Borden of Back Bay, who testified that his father was the supposed "husband" of Miss Gorman.

"He told me his wife had been killed in an automobile accident in New Jersey, and that a child by that marriage was also dead," Miss Gorman told Judge Mahoney.

The wife, the former Gertrude Barnshaw, now lives in California, she said she had learned, while Clements Borden lives with his grandmother in St. Mary's st., Back Bay.

Miss Gorman said she first became suspicious of her husband's identity last December and began to check with police and Salvation Army officials.

In January, a police report showed "Clark" was really Borden, according to her testimony. Judge Mahoney dissolved the marriage.

'Monster' Gives Fisherman Real Scare

A huge fish, "fully 20 feet long" and like nothing they had ever seen before, cost two Gloucester dorymen a good scare and about 500 feet of trawl lines off the Cashies Banks, they disclosed today.

Dory mates John Powell and Larry Oliver of the Gloucester schooner Lark, which docked at the Fish Pier, told the story of the "monster."

"We were hauling trawl when we saw the thing, hooked to our line," Powell said.

"It looked something like a shark, but different from any shark I ever saw before, and it tossed the dory around so that we were afraid we'd be upset at any minute. And we didn't want to be in the water with that thing."

"Finally we decided we'd just as soon lose the line and a few fish, so we cut him loose and rowed back to the schooner."

We will have to use ferrets to find out who's winning this war. The boys have dug in about a mile deep and only send out scouts for the milk and the morning newspapers.

They could keep that up for 50 years because nobody is going to bother a neighbor who stays in his own cellar.

After having won the last war with taxisabes the French have taken to the subways. There will be only one way to judge the results. The loser will be the first mugg who comes up for air.

FIGHTS FOR LIFE AFTER PLUNGE

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (INS)—Mrs. Mary Reardon, 34, of Cambridge, Mass., was still alive in Bellevue Hospital here although late Saturday night she fell four stories from the ledge of a window of her hotel room in West 46th st. to the roof of an adjacent four-story building.

Both her legs were broken, and physicians believe she also suffered internal injuries. Last rites were administered to her by a Catholic priest to whom she said the fall was an accident.

Attaches of the hotel told detectives she had telephoned the clerk's desk several times around the dinner hour Saturday, saying that she was ill and did not want to live.

Pedestrians later saw her sitting on the window ledge, dangling her legs outside the window and screaming. Police were called and reached the scene just as she dropped.

Her husband, Donald, said he could give no reason for her wanting to kill herself. She has been in a coma since shortly after she reached Bellevue.

Pick 7 Hub Mothers Patrol Commanders

Seven Greater Boston women were today named commanders of "Patrol" groups in the National Legion of Mothers of America. The women thus honored for their zeal and activities are:

Mrs. Hannah M. Connors, 1232 Brook rd., Milton; Mrs. Charles M. Loughlin, 59 Sacramento st., Cambridge; Mrs. Loretta Murray Petze, 21 Walker st., Weymouth; Mrs. Mary Henderson, 430 Adams st., Dorchester; Mrs. Josephine G. McNeil, 14 Ballou av., Dorchester; Mrs. Jeannette Darisano, 44 Hailey st., Everett; and Mrs. Percy Mosher, 7 Sunnyside st., Hyde Park.

This number of "Patrol" leaders was expected to be trebled within 24 hours, according to key organizers in the nation-wide mobilization of mothers fighting for the peace of America and to prevent their sons being sacrificed on foreign battlefields.

THIRD WEEK OF DRIVE

The third week of the drive opened today with increased enrollments and an amazing spread in activity. "Patrols" made up of 49 women were being rapidly organized preparatory to formation of "Neighborhood Councils."

The pyramid plan starts with "Sentry Posts" of seven members who in turn combine seven "Sentry Posts" into a "Patrol" of 49 women.

The next step is "Neighborhood Councils," consisting of 50 "Patrols," making a total of 2450. After that come major groups called "Community Councils," embracing county and state memberships, running into thousands of mothers, sisters and sweethearts of men of military age, and all other American women who are opposed to war.

LETTERS POUR IN

All communities are urged to organize on these lines.

The scores of letters pouring in at 5 Winthrop sq. reflected the deep concern of mothers.

Mrs. Benjamin H. Petty, 78 South Sixth st., New Bedford, wrote:

"I am the mother of four sons. Two are on the West Coast serving in the United States navy. I have two at home, aged 15 and 17 respectively. I have worked for years to support my family. God forbid that they should be taken from me and slaughtered in a foreign land!"

Mrs. Edward Versette, 62 Sanders st., Alhori:

"I am with the National Mothers of America. I was opposed to the lifting of the arms embargo, because I fear the consequences. It was no time to make any changes, with conditions as they are in Europe."

FEARS FOR 2 SONS

"They are trying to send our boys to help them fight over there. We are all willing to fight for this country, but not across. What did we get out of the last war? I have two sons who would surely have to go and I will fight until the last drop of my blood to stop it. I have been hoping and praying that God will help us. Send me pledge cards and I will work hard to have them filled."

Mrs. Wendell Holmes, 101 South Washington st., Whitman:

"I believe so strongly in your principles that I want either to start a group in my community, or be the means of arousing others to do so."

"I believe that it is up to the women of this nation to do something about it, and I desire to do my share. As a citizen, I feel happy and grateful for women who are clever enough to try to keep our country out of a foreign war."

Miss Fannie V. Bean, 541 Tecumseh st., Fall River:

"I note with interest the progress you are making in recruiting mothers and daughters. My mother and I would like to enroll as members. I have a brother and several uncles and cousins of military age, and I certainly would not want to see them sent to Europe to fight in a war which should be no concern of ours. Kindly send pledge cards and I will get mothers and daughters interested."

New recruits are being won hourly by these slogans of the Legion of Mothers:

1—To oppose the sending of American soldiers to fight on foreign soil.

2—To support a strong program for adequate national defense.

3—To oppose all "isms" whose object is the destruction of the American form of government.

FIVE DEAD IN WAKE OF GALE

Five deaths and thousands of dollars worth of damage at sea and ashore were counted today, as Massachusetts took toll of its worst storm since last year's hurricane.

Shipping was just beginning to resume its normal movement, widespread destruction by wind and water was being repaired, disrupted telephone, lighting, and bus and trolley services were being restored, as the skies cleared over the area.

ESCAPE DEATH IN SEA

Five fatal motor accidents were caused by the warring of the elements, and for a time, it was feared the list of casualties would be augmented by two youths lost in a catboat, and four fishermen adrift in a crippled power cruiser.

All six were reported safely ashore, after the Coast Guard had hunted the tumbling seas of Narragansett Bay all night for them.

The catboat, a report to Warren, R. I., police said, smashed on the shore of Prudence Is., and the two youths aboard, Russell Sweet, 20, and John Vierl, 21, made their way ashore.

The fishing boat, owned by Joseph Walsh of Providence, who had three friends aboard, went ashore on Quonset Pt. at the height of the storm, and the four men waded to safety.

The gale was marked by minor floods in shore towns, and daring rescues from small boats at sea. A foot of snow fell during the night on Mt. Washington, the weather station there reported.

FIVE MEET DEATH

Persons killed in accidents during the storm included:

An unidentified youth of about 20, believed to be a college student, found dead at the side of the highway between Hylake and Northampton.

Harold G. Wright, 41, of Woburn st., Lexington, struck by an auto in Bedford.

Joseph H. Armstrong, 41, formerly of Salem, crushed when his car hit a pole and overturned in Williamstown, Ct.

Albert E. Coran, 36, Rochester, N. H., killed when thrown from a rumble seat of his father-in-law's car in West Lebanon, Me.

Freeman Hatch, 8, hit by a car in Wells, Me.

Suicide's Note Cue In Love Cult Probe

believed Florence had been interrupted while writing the letter, but the mother said she had no doubt it was intended for the teacher, more than twice the girl's age. Since last summer "when I was living through hell," the mother said, she has known of some strange attraction between her daughter and the teacher.

MOTHER'S STORY

"Several neighbors came to me," said the mother, "telling me that I ought to watch Florence more closely and try to take her away from the teacher she had been seen with considerably. 'Until last summer, Florence had always shown me love and affection, such as any child would show her mother. Then she started to keep away until, at the end, I was little more than an annoying pebble under her feet.

"On several occasions I asked her why she was so friendly with the teacher and why the two of them, as the neighbors and friends told me, had been acting so strangely in public place.

"Florence would become very angry and she would run off and lock herself in the attic.

DIDN'T CARE FOR BOYS

"Several times Florence invited the teacher over to this house and she never appeared to care to go out with a boy friend. On the rare occasions when she did, she would walk with him over toward where the teacher lived. The mother said she would demand that the school board or school officials take definite action.

"If they don't," she said, "I will go to authorities who will. The letters turned over to me are simply trash. I can never believe that my daughter could get into such a state."

School Committeeman Charles W. Phelan, who was unable to attend last night's meeting, will be present tonight, he told the Evening American and he expects to have a transcript of the letters.

URGES FULL PROBE

The committee will move slowly, however, he said, and added:

"We saw one man railroaded out of town a short time ago on rumors before he was given a chance to defend himself. I believe in studying this thing thoroughly before the school board makes any decision, and that both sides should be fully heard. It is a serious matter."

So serious are the charges lodged by the dead girl's mother and parents of several other students that the school board met with last night with Phelan and another member, Chairman W. Geary Martin, still away for the week-end.

Allan Higgins, Tracy L. Sanborn and Chester Parker met with school officials at the Sanborn home for full discussion of the charges—charges which it is believed will clear up the reason for the girl's suicide.

GIRLS' SUICIDE

On Friday, Oct. 27 the girl was found dead in her mother's home and Medical Examiner Dr. Ignatius Zielenksi said he could assign no reason for it.

Shortly after the girl ended her life a delegation of mothers waited upon Supt. of Schools James W. Vose and asked him to make an investigation of stories current among the students that there had been strange intimacies between girl students and the woman teacher.

Four girl students are reported to have recently withdrawn from the school.

Whether the letters found in a search of Miss Bigelow's locker, shed any light on the situation, or merely reveal a mental condition that caused her to end her life is a closely guarded secret.

LOCKER SEALED

Soon after her tragic death, the girl's locker was sealed at the request of her parents. Recently it was opened in the presence of Supt. Vose, the parents of the girl and the principal of the high school.

One prominent member of the Parent-Teachers Association, who is the father of two girls, stated that he would ask the state board of education to step in if the Marblehead school committee failed to act. Thomas Urie, president of the Parent-Teachers Association, said he favors a hands-off policy while awaiting the action of the school committee. Disagreeing members of the association are reported planning to circulate a petition asking that there be public hearings.

STUDENTS SHOCKED

The death of Florence Bigelow shocked the entire school. Under circumstances shrouded in mystery her body was found in a gas-filled room at her Mason st. home by her mother, Mrs. Raymond Phillips. The girl had been dead for half an hour, in the opinion of the medical examiner. Doctors and police worked over her an hour in a vain effort to resuscitate her.

The suicide followed by a little more than a month the resignation of Charles McGuinness, teacher and football coach, upon complaint brought by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wood of Gregory st. that he had been found on the piazza roof of their home, outside the room of their attractive daughter, Elsie, 16-year-old high school junior.

Although there was no connection whatever between the Bigelow and McGuinness cases they stirred up tremendous excitement not only in the school, but in the town.

Calls for 'Common Goal' in Education

A call for concentration on a common goal in the scheme of American education was sounded today by Dean Jesse Buttrick Davis of Boston University School of Education in opening National Education Week.

Dean Davis, veteran of 44 years of teaching, declared:

"The old style school-marm, 'beat' of her pupils must fade before the evolution of democratic teaching methods."

Fear 6000 Job Loss in Strike

Warnings that spread of the longshoreman's strike to Boston would throw some 6000 persons out of work were expressed in shipping circles here today.

With little hope for a speedy settlement of the New York strike which has tied up 70 vessels in Atlantic and Gulf ports, maritime men were agreed extension of the dispute here would affect all New England ports.

Frank S. Davis, manager of the Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, said that thousands of employees of all classes would be made idle if the longshoremen went on strike.

HOSTESS LINKED WITH CRATER CASE

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The name of a pretty night club hostess who has been missing as long as Supreme Court Justice Joseph Force Crater was revealed today as Mrs. Stella Crater Kunz, former wife of the jurist, sought to collect $60,000 of his life insurance.

Court officials identified the missing girl as June Bryce, said to have been at one time a close friend of Judge Crater.

How her name will enter into the legal action of Mrs. Kunz to obtain the $60,000 of her former husband's insurance was not explained immediately.

Police admitted today that Miss Bryce vanished about five weeks after the disappearance of Judge Crater, a major mystery which remains unsolved despite a worldwide search costing a million dollars.

It was further learned that Miss Bryce often used the name of "Mrs. Winthrop Covell," and that Crater had been traced to her apartment. She disappeared just as she was about to be taken into custody for questioning and was never seen again.

Although the investigation of the Crater mystery is still being continued, the jurist was declared legally dead last June, eight or nine years after his disappearance. He, the present Mrs. Carl Kunz of Greenwich Village, was enabled to file his will for probate over objections of his aged parents.

She last saw Judge Crater on Aug. 3, 1939, when he left her at their summer camp in Belgrade Lakes, Me. Three days later, after a gay night club party, he stepped into a Broadway taxicab and vanished.

Handsomeness, rich, happily married, appointed to the Supreme Court bench by Franklin D. Roosevelt, who was then governor, Judge Crater had no apparent reason for hiding and was believed murdered.

Test Girl Who Tried Poison

Saved from draining the entire contents of a vial of poison when a woman knocked the bottle from her hand, an attractive, dark-haired girl was reported under observation today at Boston Psychopathic Hospital.

Police said the girl, who gave the name of Gwendolyn Beck, 18, of Norman ave., Magnolia, sipped part of the poison in the rest room of a downtown hotel. An unidentified woman struck the girl's arm, police said, knocking the bottle to the floor.

The young woman came to Boston to consult a Beacon Hill physician, according to police. Her father is Austin Beck of Roslyn ave., Westmont, Montreal, she was quoted as saying.

A surprise dash from Boston Harbor by the Nazi tanker Pauline Friedrich to deliver to Germany a precious cargo of fuel and machine oils was freely discussed on the waterfront today.

It came in the wake of a statement by Captain Heinrich E. Hietzmann that he "could pierce the British naval blockade just as the Bremen did."

The ship has been tied up at Commonwealth Pier, East Boston, for two months awaiting sailing orders.

Announcement by Capt. Hietzmann that he plans to take passage shortly to Germany for the Christmas holidays was interpreted as a hint the big tanker may risk the trip under sealed orders possibly under command of another officer.

The veteran skipper, a sea raider in the last war, was surprisingly voluble in expressing his contempt for British sea-power and in his ship's chances of crossing the ocean "even more easily" than did the Bremen.

Asked if he intended to follow the same North Atlantic route as taken by the Bremen, the burly commander replied "no."

"I have plotted even a better route than that taken by the Bremen. And blockade or no blockade, I'd get home safely, even if the entire British navy were on my trail."

But despairing of ever receiving the orders that would send him roaming the seas, as he did in 1914 as commander of the German sea raider, Sea Wolf, Capt. Hietzmann announced that he intends to sail for home on a passenger ship in order to join his wife and children for the Christmas holidays.

The Pauline Friedrich, with her precious cargo of 8000 tons of fuel oil and fine machine oils, will be left in command of the freighter's first officer.

ALLSTON STREET CAR CRASH UNDER PROBE

City and state today probed a street car crash on Commonwealth ave., Allston, which sent three persons to hospitals and slightly injured 70 others.

Two Boston-bound trolley cars met in rear-end collision when the first vehicle halted to pick up a passenger at Amory st.

Taken to St. Elizabeth's hospital, where she was treated for a laceration of the lower right leg, was Minnie Clayton, 55, of Boyd st., Newton.

Two 14-year-old Brighton girls, Bernice Kupris of Vineland st., and Lorraine Holland of N. Beacon st., were treated at the Kenmore hospital for cuts and bruises.

A number of other passengers in the two cars were cut by flying glass or suffered bruises and abrasions, but declined hospital treatment, preferring to be treated by their own physicians.

According to police, a Newton-Brighton-Watertown car, inbound with about 55 passengers, most of them women, and operated by J. E. Aston of Rutland st., Watertown, had stopped to pick up a passenger.

A second car, in charge of Operator Anthony Kouns of Walden st., Cambridge, was trailing the first trolley.

Carrying about 15 passengers, the car started down the hill, the brakes apparently failing to hold, and rolled with ever-increasing momentum to smash into the other trolley, which was still stationary at the foot of the incline.

Passengers in both cars were flung from their seats by the impact, which shattered glass in the windows and demolished the rear vestibule of the first trolley and the front vestibule of the second.

Operator Kouns, struggling with the brakes of the second car, was flung to the floor but escaped injury outside of a shaking up.

Both trolleys remained on the rails, and the passengers were able to reach the street.

Many displayed cuts from flying glass, while others complained of injured backs and sprained shoulders.

Police with ambulances were soon on the scene, but found their services were not needed, with the one exception.

The first car was eventually pushed on a siding to be towed to the barn later, while the second continued under its own power.

Dedicate Tablet To 'Fighting 9th'

A granite monument honoring officers and men of the old "Fighting Ninth" regiment of Infantry, M. V. M., was dedicated at Old Ninth Regiment Circle, Old Harbor Village, South Boston, during ceremonies curtailed by the rain-storm.

Speakers were Brigadier General John J. Sullivan, retired, M. N. G.; Captain Roland A. Mangione, 110th Cavalry, M. N. G.; and George A. Murray, president of the City Council. The Rev. William J. Carly of St. Cecilia's Church, Back Bay, delivered the invocation.

4 LEADING FELD IN SCHOOL FIGHT

By FRANK REILLY

On the eve of election, four fighting candidates among the 22 who seek the three seats on the Boston school committee were waging last-minute battles today, with School Committeeman Joseph C. White of West Roxbury apparently the leading contender.

Vote on Pensions Tomorrow

By the Associated Press

Citizens of California and Ohio gave old-age pension proposals a last once over today before voting their convictions in tomorrow's off-year elections.

Office seekers in a dozen other states argued largely local issues, with election of mayors in Philadelphia, Detroit and San Francisco outweighing in political interest campaigns for three seats in the House of Representatives and for governors' chairs in Kentucky and Mississippi.

Herbert S. Bigelow, leader of the Ohio pension drive, said last night that if his proposed amendment to the state constitution was defeated, he would draft a revised proposal increasing the taxes for pension payments.

OHIO PENSION PLAN
To guarantee every retired Ohioan over 60 a pension of at least $50 a month, Bigelow would collect a tax equal to one-fourth of the federal income tax and a tax of 2 per cent of the value of all land worth more than $20,000 an acre.

Opponents have argued that his plan would close the schools, put hospitals out of commission and ston highway work.

The so-called "ham and eggs" pension battle in California centers on a revised $30 every Thursday program. An administrator, with some powers over production and distribution, would give "warrants" worth from $15 to $30 to non-workers over 50.

KENTUCKY RATE
Theoretically, the scrip would circulate as money; but whoever held it at the end of each week would be required to attach a two-cent stamp tax to each dollar's worth. At the end of a year, the scrip (having collected $1.04 in taxes) could be exchanged for money.

In the race for the Kentucky governorship, Circuit Judge King Swopes, Republican, is opposed by Governor Keen Johnson, who became Chief Executive this fall when A. B. Chandler resigned to go to the Senate.

In Mississippi, Judge Paul B. Johnson, a Democrat, is unopposed for the governorship.

24 Karat Gold Finish CHARM BRACELET FREE

To Introduce Tayton's
Silk-Sifted Face Powder

This beautiful 24 karat gold finish charm bracelet, with four good luck charms attached—a 24 karat gold finished horseshoe, four leaf clover, wishbone, and bluebird, designed exactly like the exquisite $50 bracelet presented to Margaret Lindsay for her great motion picture work, will be sent free to you if you will send the pink head form around a 10c or 25c box of TAYTON'S Silk-Sifted Face Powder—the no-shine powder sifted through silk to a flustering fineness to gain glamour beauty. Praised by many movie stars in Hollywood. Stay on longer, does not cake. Six new, nearest-to-life colors. All you do to get your free TAYTON'S bracelet is buy a 10c or 25c box of TAYTON'S Face Powder in your 10c or 25c store. Tear off the pink head form and mail it to Tayton Co., Room 426, 3251 Main St., Kansas City, Mo.

Close on his heels, however, were Daniel J. McDermott of Jamaica Plain, who in his first bid for election to the committee two years ago polled more than 43,000 votes; Dr. Patrick J. Foley of South Boston, member of the committee for several years, and City Councilor Clement A. Norton of Hyde Park. Councilor Norton is retiring from City Hall after 10 years' service.

Two women candidates, Miss Anna M. Niland of East Boston, who retired as a Boston teacher after 50 years' service and Miss Josephine H. Lally of Dorchester, were also waging valiant campaigns, the ranks of their supporters growing hourly.

Four other candidates continued to increase their strength today. They are William W. Dummery of West Roxbury, former superintendent of schoolhouse construction; John J. Burke of Roxbury, Edmund J. Walsh of Charlestown, and Dr. Joseph V. Lajoie of Dorchester, former committee member.

Election officials believe that 200,000 will go to the polls tomorrow. Boston's total registered vote is 345,000. Polls will be open from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. The school committee battle was growing more intense as Atty. Joseph S. Vahey showed increasing strength in his home section, Brighton.

Republican groups are now actively campaigning for election of Alexander Welch of Back Bay, president of the Suffolk County Republican League.

Refusing to concede anything to more formidable candidates are John J. Sullivan of Charlestown, Albert West of East Boston, Joseph A. Noble, West End, Albert P. McCulloch, Dorchester, Francis X. Morse, Charlestown, James H. Sheldon, Back Bay, Patrick M. Aversa, East Boston, Otis Archer Hood, Mrs. Hattie M. Smith, West Roxbury, and John F. Welch, East Boston.

Four Wage Battle
Royal in West End

Although the voice of the famed old Hendricks Club remained silent for the first time in 55 years, Ward 3 of Boston's West End seethed with political excitement today, with four candidates waging a battle royal for a City Council seat.

The warring candidates, who furnish the chief interest in tomorrow's off-year election, are City Councilor John I. Fitzgerald, Representative George Leary, Joseph Russo and Lawrence J. Haley.

Fitzgerald and Leary, leading members of the Hendricks Club, saw the traditional "last Sunday" pass with neither winning the endorsement of the famous old organization.

In other years, the Hendricks Club endorsement was all that was necessary for election. But this year, the old club was in darkness, with the rival candidates holding separate meetings.

16 Mayors Seeking Re-Election

Hot municipal election fights reached their climaxes in seven Greater Boston communities today, as the voters of 16 Massachusetts cities prepared to go to the polls tomorrow.

In each city, the present mayor was seeking re-election, but in several quarters a tough battle was faced by the incumbents.

The Greater Boston elections are in Cambridge, Somerville, Malden, Everett, Lynn, Waltham and Newton, with candidates seeking positions throughout the city government's and for positions on the various school boards.

Elsewhere in the State, sizzling contests marked the windup of campaigns. Other cities holding elections are Lowell, Woburn, Springfield, Gloucester, Marlboro, Westfield, Fitchburg, Leominster and Pittsfield.

Flint Captain's Own Story of Ship Drama

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—Capt. Joseph Gainard of Melrose, Mass., master of the City of Flint, American-owned freighter captured by the Germans as a prize ship, told today in an NBC broadcast of what happened.

on October 3, all precautions had been taken to show the City of Flint was a neutral ship. We had one British passenger who formerly had been temporary radio operator but who had been replaced by an American.

On October 9 we were stopped by a flag signal of a German warship of pocket battleship class. The ship was first sighted on the horizon at three points on the starboard bow, and it was about eight minutes before we could distinguish her flag signals. As the warship approached her color led me to believe her French, but her guns showed her to be German.

THREAT TO CREW

The lieutenant in charge of the prize crew addressed our crew in good English as follows:

"I must tell you we proceed as a prize to Germany, where the prize court decides what becomes of your cargo. You are as usual to obey your own captain and his officers."
"My soldiers will carry out my orders. So long as things are carried out as usual everything is all right. If you make trouble, I will put you in your boats and sink this ship. This is a war measure, and whether any of us like it or not, I must carry out my orders."

The lieutenant addressed the British crew from the torpedored

BRIDE—Honeymooning today with her new husband is the former Doris Doughty of Framingham, following her wedding to Len Taylor, co-captain and star end of St. Anselm's football team.

freighter Stonegate as follows:

"You take the care of by the Americans. You will accept whatever accommodations they can provide. If you interfere with the American captain's orders, my soldiers will stop you. If you are as orderly as you were before, we shall go to Germany where your parole, already given, will be respected."

UNDER DANE DISGUISE

From Oct. 9 we proceeded on various courses until Oct. 18, when the German crew blotted out all traces of American ownership and painted the name "Alphi" on both sides of the bow. Canvas was secured on both sides amidship on which was painted the flag of Denmark. The Danish flag, however, was never flown. This procedure is believed to be in accordance with international law as long as guns are not used.

On Oct. 20, the German prize crew hoisted the German merchant flag. Later that day we landed in Tromsø harbor. I went over the ship, with the assistance of the Norwegian pilot. Shortly after the Norwegian neutrality patrol officers with customs officials came on board.

We were in Tromsø overnight. The British crew and my passengers were turned over to the British consul. The next thing we proceeded to Murmansk.

I tried continually to get in touch with our ambassador, but did not succeed during our six days' stay. On the fifth day, at 3:45, I was told that the ship was again a German prize and we were to leave at once.

FREED BY NORSE

All this time, the condition of my officers and crew was good. We took 150 tons of fresh water, and keeping inside the three-mile limit, we proceeded down the Norwegian coast to Tromsø. The officials again stopped us, sealed our hatches, put Germans in touch with the German consulate, and the ship again sailed accompanied by two destroyers. Later one was relieved by a gunboat.

The next day, a German merchant ship which was ahead of us turned back to meet us, and, bridge to bridge, its captain shouted a message to the lieutenant aboard the City of Flint to anchor at Haugesund.

After anchoring in Haugesund, a boarding party came aboard, removed the prize crew, and stated that the City of Flint was free.

I want to mention the high standard of the conduct of my officers and crew who were at all times able and willing to carry out my orders, and did so in a very creditable manner. We all appreciate the interest of the American people who have been anxious about our welfare.

be mistaken in specific application to the City of Flint. President Roosevelt's proclamations establishing "combat zones" forbidden to American ships do not apply to vessels already at sea when the proclamations were issued.)

"MORE ADVENTURE" SEEN

High German circles intimated that Norway, responding to diplomatic pressure, may compel the City of Flint to unload its cargo at Bergen for judgment by the German prize court, before granting the ship its clearance papers.

In view of the navy's attitude, it is assumed that the City of Flint will meet still more adventures if she proceeds under the American flag with her cargo, either toward England or the United States.

In this event, it was broadly intimated, the freighter is "likely to change color again in the North Sea."

U. S. REPEAL ASSAILED

Meanwhile, pending outcome of conversations between the German admiralty and foreign office, sympathetic Berlin quarters stated:

"Negotiations between Germany and Norway over the City of Flint are continuing."

Another matter engaging the at-ention of the Reich was the lifting of the United States arms embargo. Diplomatic Correspondence, organ of foreign office, led a German press barrage against the United States move by declaring that henceforth it is the responsibility of President Roosevelt to keep the United States at peace.

Diplomatic Correspondence cited excerpts from three of President Roosevelt's speeches delivered in August, 1935, and in January and February, 1936.

These excerpts were depicted as warning against the dangers of delivering American war materials to belligerents. Utterances by Secretary of State Cordell Hull also were cited, purportedly condemning arms deliveries to warring nations on grounds that they prolonged wars and benefited profiteers.

CITES ROOSEVELT VIEW

Such observations, said Diplomatic Correspondence, are "still valid," and America's present leaders "can hardly prove that their former standpoint was mistaken."

It also recalled that President Roosevelt himself had warned against "false profits pursued by American industry and agriculture during the World War."

Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goerring's, Essener National Zeitung, however, commented:

"The whole thing seems to indicate that money is still stronger in this young country than adopted principles."

A slight increase in military activity on the western front was reported today by a communiqué issued by the German high command. It stated:

"There was slightly livelier scouting activity in some sectors."

"There also was weak artillery fire. A French plane was shot down near Saarburg."

Mines Loosed By Gale Peril Dane Shipping

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 6 (AP)—Drifting mines torn loose from German fields during recent high winds reached the outskirts of the city today.

Several rolled ashore on the island of Amager, which forms the southern district of Copenhagen. Two exploded when they struck rocks near Vesterbro, 20 miles south, but no damage was reported.

Crews on land, sea and the air battled against the advance of the mines.

Scouting planes circling over the coast and in the Or sound, between Denmark and Sweden, counted 150 mines.

A derelict barrage balloon also drifted across Danish waters, dragging its cable and wrecking several telephone lines on northern Jutland.

Navy, Coast Guard Hunt Nazi Warship

Speeding on secret orders, a flotilla of navy and Coast Guard craft steamed wide reaches of the North Atlantic today on the lookout for the 10,000-ton pocket battleship Deutschland.

The Deutschland, high-speed Nazi warship which captured the City of Flint, has taken up a patrol off the North Atlantic ship lanes, according to reports from London.

United States officials refused all comment, but it was learned that the big squadron, known as President Roosevelt's Destroyer Force No. 18 has been ordered farther north in the neutrality patrol. News that the German raider was off American and Canadian shores was revealed by the captain of the British hospital ship Gi-leanes when that vessel touched at Lisbon.

The Deutschland was reported as seen off Newfoundland, hovering near the transatlantic steamer lanes between North America and Europe.

Included in the guarded announcement by Coast Guard headquarters at Boston was the interesting admission that one of its ships was "heading toward" the position off Newfoundland of the 7000-ton Norwegian freighter Seij, which radioed she lost her propeller between Newfoundland and Sydney, Nova Scotia.

Officers said the order was precautionary so a service vessel would be "on hand in case it were needed." They declined to state what vessel was under way, explaining that no information could be released save from Washington.

Before seizing the Flint the Deutschland sank the British freighter Storgate. The Storgate's survivors were placed on board the City of Flint, together with a German naval prize crew which sailed the American vessel north to the Soviet Arctic port of Murmansk, then down to Hauge-sund, Norway, where the Flint was taken away and restored to the American crew.

Sing Special Mass For Dead Cardinals

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 6 (AP)—A special mass was sung today for cardinals who have died during the year, including George Cardinal Mundelein, who died Oct. 2 in Chicago.

Pope Pius XII was seated on his throne in the Sistine chapel during the service which was celebrated by Raffaele Cardinal Rossi. Later the pontiff gave absolution upon a small symbolic bier borne before the throne. Bishop Thomas O'Shea, new American missionary bishop, was among the prelates attending the mass.

F. D. Passes Up Plymouth Fete

PLYMOUTH, Nov. 6 (AP)—President Roosevelt sent his regrets today to the committee which invited him to participate in Plymouth's Nov. 30th Thanksgiving Day observance.

The President has sought to have the holiday observed on the 23d, but he conveyed a hope Plymouth's observance on the later date would be "successful."

WATCHING enemy lines is this German soldier, seen through a casemate of the Siegfried Line. Guns ordinarily would point through this opening.

French in Air Dash On West

PARIS, Nov. 6 (INS)—A brief period of bright weather caused a sudden outburst of aerial activity today along the western front—most of it designed to spy out military dispositions.

Both sides took advantage of the sunshine to carry out reconnaissance flights which penetrated deep into enemy territory, and the French immediately claimed that their planes had carried out the most extensive flights.

The sunshine proved only temporary, however, and by noon the weather at the front was returning wet and windy again.

French officials took note of what they called an increased German tendency to fly over neutral territory. They said three German flights were carried out over a village in northern France. Two of these planes came and returned via Belgium, it was stated, and a third via the North sea.

Otherwise activity at the front was limited to light patrols and ambushes and sporadic artillery fire.

In one section the Germans made a spirited attempt to capture a French post in the Vosges mountains. They approached close enough to use hand grenades, but the French said they were repulsed by heavy machine gun fire.

At another point, French forces calmly watched a detachment of Germans establish a post on an island in the Rhine River.

The French, according to reports reaching Paris, coolly withheld their fire until the post was established. They then opened up with mortar, driving the Germans off in disorder.

Britain's Belgium Envoy Will Wed

No $16 Silk Shirts If U. S. Goes to War

By RAYMOND KNOTT

Copyright, 1939, by Chicago Herald-American

Each of us is, of course, most interested in what will happen to himself if war should come and the American government's plans for regimenting the nation go into effect. Let's begin with the plans for controlling labor.

The industrial mobilization plan sets up a war labor administration, "to provide machinery for the equitable and voluntary distribution of labor to industry and agriculture during war."

Labor authorities and Prof. Edwin F. Albertsworth, Northwestern University constitutional law authority, say this actually means regimentation of labor.

Daniel G. Carmel, general counsel for the Illinois and Chicago Federation of Labor and as assistant attorney general of Illinois, goes so far as to describe it as "conscription" of labor.

Labor will be deprived, at the outset, of its one effective weapon in disputes with employers. Strikes will NOT be permitted.

That they will be forbidden is only hinted at in the official copy of the plan itself, but it is set forth clearly in Leo M. Cheerne's book, "Adjusting Your Business to War."

This book, written with the co-operation of the War and Navy Departments, carries an introduction by Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson, which makes it as official as an unofficial document can be.

The government will fix wages, regulated and standardized with relation to the cost of living.

The government will set up a single unified employment service to prevent competition for labor and keep down labor migration

Don't Turn Around, Mister!

Allies to Use Gold For U.S. War Goods

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—Government circles predicted today that Britain and France would use the gold portion of their first "cash and carry" purchases of American airplanes and other war supplies.

Initial allied orders under the new neutrality law have been estimated by some officials as high as $1,000,000,000—all of which must be paid before the goods leave the country.

Use of their American securities and other assets was expected to be postponed in the hope of getting better prices and conserving as much as possible of their American investments.

Gold, which can be sold quickly at the United States Treasury at the fixed price of $35 an ounce, is the easiest method of payment. Furthermore, the British and French already have perhaps as much as $500,000,000 in gold deposited in New York and Canada.

Officials aren't worrying about the Allies dumping their securities on American markets in any way that might depress prices.

"They aren't crazy enough to sell in a way that would reduce the proceeds of the sales," said one high official.

Several officials expressed the opinion that the Allies probably would set up relatively small offices in New York, staffed with trained brokers, who would sell securities in dribs and drabs whenever a good price appeared available.

They also predicted that most of the sales would be made by direct negotiation with prospective buyers, instead of through the New York Stock Exchange, where the transactions could be spotted by speculators.

Hitler Admirer Reported Shot

LONDON, Nov. 6 (INS)—Confirmation was sought today for a report from Belgrade appearing in the London Sunday Dispatch that the Hon. Unity Freeman-Mitford, the blond admirer of Adolf Hitler, was near death from an allegedly self-inflicted bullet wound.

The Dispatch quoted Prince Nicholas Orloff, a member of the famous Russian family, as saying, Miss Freeman-Mitford had attempted suicide the day that war was declared.

"The doctors had little hope of saving her life," Orloff said.

BRITAIN BOLSTERS CONVOYS

LONDON, Nov. 6 (INS)—A mighty British campaign to repel the warfare against German submarines was launched today as the first tangible result of the lifting of the American embargo on arms shipments to European belligerents.

Britain aims to sweep the seas free of enemy submarines and thus prevent the sinking and loss of cargoes from the United States containing valuable aircraft, food, raw materials and munitions.

Great Britain, it was learned, will take no chances lest Germany's threatened "submarine barrage" in midatlantic should meet with success.

It was learned that the British are reconstituting an elaborate convoy of the type which enabled two million American doughboys to bridge the Atlantic ocean during the last war.

By this time it will be a combination naval and airplane convoy. Some destroyers will convoy merchantmen loaded with American supplies and others will press relentless counter-submarine efforts from one side of the Atlantic to the other.

18,500,000 British Tonnage Still Afloat

LONDON, Nov. 6 (AP)—Authoritative naval sources said today that Britain has 18,500,000 tons of merchant shipping afloat, despite the loss in the first two months of the war of 56 merchant ships, totaling 234,793 tons.

An admiralty spokesman said that during the same period seven "allied" ships, totaling 47,933 tons, and 32 neutral ships, totaling 17,074 tons, were sunk. He said that so far in November, two neutrals, totaling 16,149 tons, were sunk. Most of the ships lost were sunk by German submarines, he said, although some were victims of mine explosions.

(The German high command announced on Oct. 25—eight weeks after the start of hostilities—that Nazi submarines and bombers had sunk 115 merchant ships totaling 175,321 tons, in addition to 8,000 tons of warships. Britain on the same day put her losses at that time at 51 merchant ships, totaling 221,000 tons, exclusive of the warships Royal Oak and Courageous.)

British losses, the spokesman said, dropped from 27 ships totaling 135,636 tons in September to 13 ships of 83,159 tons in October. One "allied" ship was sunk in September and six in October.

Neutral losses in the same period were placed at: September, 15 ships of 37,284 tons; October, 17 ships, 40,390 tons.

Figures on German merchant ships captured by Britain were not available.

Spain's 1st Ship In 3 Years Here

For the first time since the outbreak of the Spanish revolution in 1936, a Spanish merchant vessel steamed up Boston harbor today, bringing word that the Spanish government plans to follow the lead of the United States in barring its ships from belligerent ports.

The ship was the Maria Victoria, carrying 4000 tons of scrap metal loaded in New York, here to load 3000 tons more for Italy at the Mystic docks in Charlestown. Her skipper, Capt. Manuel Az-

BURKE FUNERAL PLANNED

The funeral of Edward F. Burke, 56, secretary of the board of the Home for Destitute Catholic Children, will be held Wednesday at 10 a. m. with a solemn high mass of requiem at St. William's Church.

Mr. Burke, who lived in Thornley at Dorchester, died suddenly in New York.

He was a lifelong resident of Boston and one of the founders of the Federal Steam & Gas Supply Co. of Boston. He was a member of the Charitable Irish Society, Catholic Union of Boston, James E. Hayes Council, Knights of Columbus, and Boston City Club.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Gertrude Burke; three sons Edward F. Jr., Paul J. and Joseph G. Burke; two daughters, Mrs. Howard F. Ryan of Watertown and Mrs. Richard J. Long of Dorchester, and a brother, John J. Burke of Brookline.

ARTHUR W. HALE

Funeral services for Arthur W. Hale, 75, of Brimmer st., Beacon Hill, retired investment broker, will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Park Street Church. He died after a short illness.

A native of Georgetown, he lived most of his life in Winchester and was active in the affairs of the First Congregational Church there. He was a broker for nearly 50 years and was head of Hale and Company of Boston.

MARGARET T. HURLEY

The funeral of Miss Margaret T. Hurley, 84, for 52 years a teacher and school official in Fall River until her retirement 14 years ago, was held today in St. Jerome's Church, Arlington. Burial was in Holyhood cemetery, Brookline.

ADELAIDE K. THATCHER

MIDDLEBORO, Nov. 6 — Mrs. Adelaide K. Thatcher, 81, public librarian here for more than 40 years, is dead today at her home. Rites will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Church of Our Saviour. Burial will be in Central Cemetery here.

DR. W. B. BATCHELDER

The funeral of Dr. William B. Batchelder, 68, of Wallingford rd., Brighton, a physician in Dorchester and Roxbury until his retirement seven years ago, will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at Wyoming Cemetery, Melrose.

Byrd Expedition Speeds Plans for Dash

Racing against an ever approaching deadline, preparations for Admiral Richard E. Byrd's Antarctic expedition continued apace on all fronts today.

The gigantic snow cruiser, its trip here from Chicago mounting a series of mishaps and delays, was laid up in Erie Penn., for repairs which will take at least another 24 hours.

Equipment damaged in a plunge from a highway bridge a week ago will be repaired.

Meanwhile, more than 10 tons of frozen meat were put aboard the motorship North Star under the watchful eyes of two naval cooks entrusted with feeding the 65 explorers during their two-year stay in the frozen wastes.

At Wonalancet, N. H., sled dogs were being put through final paces by veteran trainers.

An academic touch was added with the appointment of Dr. Paul J. Siple, a scientific aide, as a research associate of Clark University's graduate school of geography. He plans to send by short wave to the Worcester school observations on climate, wind and air pressure.

Casts 1st Vote at 76 To 'Avenge Insult'

Probably one of the happiest voters to go to the polls tomorrow will be John A. Flather, 76-year-old retired businessman.

The reason is that "Pop," as he is known to his friends, will have the privilege of exercising his right as an American citizen by casting his first vote.

For the past three quarters of a century, Flather has been a citizen of the United States, but he has been a citizen also of the District of Columbia where they do not vote because it is not a sovereign state.

Two years ago, following his wife's death in Washington, Flather came to Boston to live, since he had no other relatives here.

of friends and, although late in years, became interested in politics.

In an interview at his residence in a downtown hotel, Mr. Flather said he had made Boston his legal residence as a result of an argument he had in Washington.

"I was sitting around a hotel lobby in Washington with several men who were discussing politics," he said.

"I attempted to give my views on the present Washington administration when I was promptly told to 'keep quiet.' They said I had no right to discuss the administration because I had no vote.

"That remark humiliated me, and I then and there vowed that before I died I would vote. A few weeks ago he went to Boston City Hall and registered as a voter so on Tuesday 'Pop' will avenge the Washington insult.

THE SKY RAIDERS

by Paul Whelton
Staff Writer and World War Flyer

UP UNDER the star-crusted dome the air grew colder in the winter night, but the two men in their furred teddybears and their lined helmets and boots did not feel the cold. On the other hand the two men were warm and testy with impatience.

Far ahead, and considerably higher than their own elevation, the two men cursed even more warmly as they saw the last of the wing-tip lights wink out.

Adjutant Jenatzky reached over and snatched his own wing-lights. No sense in having those things give you away while you were a ship alone up in this blackness over Flanders.

He half turned in his seat and looked at his bomber, questioning, but Lieut. Rolin only shrugged his shoulders as he stood in the seat.

This is a fine note! Two Belgian escadrilles of sturdy Farman bombers had been under orders to meet at 7000 feet over the flat lands of Flanders and then proceed for an attack on a German airplane plant near Ostend.

All had met, except the bomb-laden plane piloted by Adjutant Jenatzky. With the perversity of motors, Jenatzky's had been splitting back and balking, clanking the machine only sluggishly toward the cold white stars.

Jenatzky would have turned back had it not been for those huge explosive eggs hanging under the wings of the Farman, but suddenly the motor had begun to hit smoothly, as if deciding to make the best of this nocturnal assignment.

But it was too late. The other machines had circled, with wing-tips lit to avoid collisions, until the time for the rendezvous had elapsed—and when they had formed behind the flight leader, doused their lights and were swallowed up by the night.

Well, the orders said Ostend! It would be all over, in all probability, when he got there, but Adjutant Jenatzky leveled off and pointed the nose of the Farman to the north.

With his night glasses, Lieut. Rolin endeavored to pierce the curtain for some sight of the formation. He might just as well have been looking into a silk hat. They were seemingly alone in the ebony sea up under the stars.

No ground lights! Rolin cursed down with the glasses, sweeping the area. The angle of the glasses asked and his eyes were again laid down his goggles when some motion was caught in the lenses.

Leaning out over the cockpit, Rolin stared again through the glasses. Some vague, swimming form, like a dark gray creature of the ocean depths, was slipping through the night out there. The form caught another form, and another and another. They were headed northeast.

Excitedly then, Lieut. Rolin tapped his pilot's arm and when Jenatzky turned, the bomber pointed out and down.

"Boche bombers," he shouted above the drone of the Farman. "Must be coming back from a raid. How about some fun?"

There was a comradery and a rare understanding between these two Belgian raiders of the night. Instantly Jenatzky nodded the Farman down, eased on the throttle and went into a glide to fall in at the tail-end of the Boche procession.

It would never do to stay up, a silhouette against the stars and a mark for the German machines.

Like a boy following a parade, Jenatzky trailed behind and a little to the west, keeping those unsuspecting gray shadows barely in view.

Above Furnes the shadows moved and for another 10 miles, when the Belgians sighted a signal light near Ghiselles. The Boche bombers were nosing down. In a brief light that he flashed, Jenatzky took a peek at his watch. It was just 11 p. m.—the 23rd hour of the continental day.

In the air the Belgians saw the Boche flight leader's lights flash—short, long, short long. Rolin thumped his pilot joyfully. Lights came on below at Ghiselles aerodrome. One by one, their light giving the same signal, the Boche settled to the ground.

From far-off, the Belgians saw the airfield lights go out again and all again was blackness. Now the two men looked at each other and grinned there in the darkness. Jenatzky set his course for the field. Above it, he flashed the same signal—short, long, short, long.

Almost instantly the field was lighted again, although the Boche probably wondered, if all their fight had returned, who this late arrival could be.

At little more than 100 feet altitude, Jenatzky sailed across the lighted field which made a beautiful target. Carefully timing his shot, Lieut. Rolin dropped the first bomb directly into the center of the bombers, now taxiing slowly over to the hangars.

Machines and men disintegrated and the Farman above rocked from the concussion, even though it was by the spot and Rolin had just pulled the second bomb release.

This second explosive egg sent a hangar hurtling into the air and collapsed a second.

Turning quickly, the Farman swept back across the field, now with motor full on. Bang! Bang! Two other bombs wreaked more havoc.

As the airfield lights suddenly were doused, the last sight the Belgians had was of men running. A powerful searchlight began to bark from the ground. The searchlight's roving finger swept the sky.

From an angle, Jenatzky dived at the light. Pilot and observer pressed their machine gun triggers. And the light shattered out abruptly.

In high glee, the Belgians sped low into the blackness and headed for home.

The unscheduled feat of Adjutant Jenatzky and Lieut. Rolin was one of the highspots of the Belgian Air Force's part in the World War, a sturdy participation despite Belgium's small numbers and inadequate equipment, and one that produced several aces.

Jenatzky and Rolin never became aces, operating as they did in night bombardment, but there were eight Belgians credited officially with five or more air victories over the Boche, and the three leaders of this ace group were, in the order of their rise, Lieut. Thieffry, twice captured by the Boche and once escaping, Lieut. de Meulemeester and Capt. Coppens.

Lieut. Thieffry was Belgium's foremost ace until shot down in flames, Feb. 23, 1918. At first feared killed, he bobbed up later as a German prison camp, having escaped death in the crash almost miraculously.

Once before he had been captured, in 1915, when he was a member of a motorcycle corps organized as couriers and liaison men by Gen. Leman of Belgium. Several months later Thieffry escaped into Holland, from where he made his way back to Belgium, after fleeing a Dutch internment camp.

When he went over the lines as a pursuit man he was in a quiet sector with few Boches, but by maintaining a schedule that kept him in the air most of the day, this determined Belgian began to bring home scores.

On July 3, 1917, he had his most difficult time in the air, when, as he was returning to Biuges, he was beset by 14 German Albatross machines.

There was nothing else to do, Thieffry got his anger boiling and flung his Niepport into the midst of the flight, his machine gun spitting forth bullets.

In dismay the Boche scattered, but one Albatross tumbled out of control, bullet-riddled, and then a second followed immediately after.

Thieffry kept right on going, but to his amazement found he had a wary escort, with five Boche planes flying almost in line far to his right and seven more, in similar formation, at his left.

Almost into Biuges the Germans escorted him thus. As they turned to go back, Thieffry waved his hand in acknowledgment of this honor and some of the Boche waved in return.

When Thieffry fell on Feb. 23, 1918, behind the German lines, his ship aflame and pouring back smoke, his comrades believed he had perished, but there was rejoicing when word came from Germany that he was alive and a prisoner again.

Thieffry had 10 victories officially when he was shot down, and this same figure was attained in April of 1918 by Lieut. de Meulemeester.

He led the active Belgian fliers for victories until the latter part of June when a dark horse, then Adj. Coppens, roared to the front with 13, of which 10 were observation balloons, his specialty. Nor did Coppens stop there.

When the war ended he had run his score up to 34 Boche, of which 26 were balloons, seven of the gas bags being destroyed in a single week.

Like America's Frank Luke of Arizona, Coppens had become a prey to "drachen fever" or the urge to destroy Boche balloons, one of the most hazardous wartime excitements.

Luke, the "balloon buster," shot down 26 balloons in flames in two weeks, to lead all drachen hunters, although only a few of these were confirmed and made official.

In fact the young and dared-devil American came to his end finally on Sunday, Sept. 23, 1918, while shooting down a low-swinging drachen. Wounded in the scuffle, he landed, was rushed by German infantry, seized his heavy pistol from the plane and made a last stand.

Less than five seconds later he was dead, drilled by the rifles of the onrushing Boche.

Small though their numbers were, and their part in the World War in the air generally given little emphasis in reviews, the Belgian fliers were of the most courageous and adaptable.

On one occasion, Belgian Capt. Jaumotte, in an observation plane with an observer, experienced motor trouble while at work up over the German lines.

By dint of skilful piloting and careful nursing of the limping motor, Jaumotte finally succeeded in clearing the German lines.

In a flat glide, as flat as he dared hold it and with the spitting and coughing motor giving him little aid in the way of pull, Jaumotte hoped to make his own lines, but in addition to loss of motive power he was bucking an adverse wind.

Slower and slower the Belgian machine sank, with every foot of forward progress fought for.

A bodies to aid the progress, Capt. Jaumotte and his observer heard the whine of bullets about them and shell bursts from anti-aircraft guns.

Nearer and nearer the earth rose, as the two men peered over the cockpit, then ranged their eyes ahead over that waste of debris, of tangled barbed wire, of deep pits and shell-holes.

They were well under 100 feet and bullets were ripping through the observation machine as they passed above the Boche communication trenches.

"Seemingly every German on the ground, within range, was taking pot shots at them. If one of those screaming bullets came up through the cockpit . . . under the seat . . .

Even if only wounded—how can you explain a wound like that? "Where were you wounded, captain?" asked the lady.

Embarrassing questions like this in the years to come—if you lived through!

The German front line trenches! Only 40 feet up now! Their trajectory is painfully flat. Their own trenches are 200 yards away. Through the wires the wind sings.

In an amazingly level area just beyond the midway point in No Man's Land, the crippled machine came down. Capt. Jaumotte skillfully avoiding this shell hole and that as he taxied expertly in a zig-zag.

Bullets from the Boche ripped around them, tearing through the fabric of the machine, gully the already tortured earth.

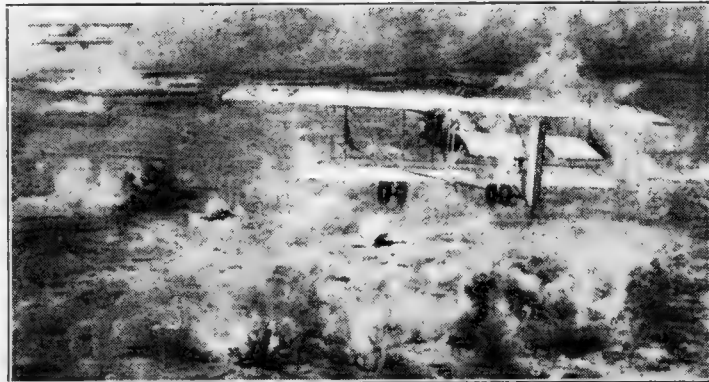

Out leaped the captain and his observer. Ducking, running, falling, veering to one side, then to the other, the two desperate Belgians crossed those 60 yards with a prayer on their lips and wings on their feet.

They had no time to set the machine afire, to save it from German hands, but minutes later and the fire would soon take care of that, they thought, as they slid down into the protection of their own trenches.

Capt. Jaumotte and his observer were escorted back of the lines, where they were fed and given drinks, and from where they notified their aerodrome that they had made a forced landing.

After a night's sleep the pilot and observer were transported to the aerodrome for assignment to a new machine. Just another incident in the life of an airman at the front!

But to his amazement, the second day, Capt. Jaumotte received word that his crippled two-seater was still sitting out in No Man's Land, still looking somewhat like a sieve from the

German Anti-Aircraft Outpost Overlooks Westwall

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT need not be disturbed, but rather is highly complimented and is assured of having done a very commendable thing, by the violent Soviet Russian reaction to his appeal for justice to Finland.

For suggesting to Chairman Kalinin of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet his hope that friendly and peaceful relations be preserved and developed between Russia and Finland, the President is accused by Premier Molotov of meddling in matters that do not concern the United States.

Why should Red Russia be so provoked by a kindly expression of humanitarian sympathy which, while speaking for justice to Finland, embraced also the people of both Russia and Finland who would pay the grievous price of injustice should it lead to war?

It can hardly be otherwise than that Russia contemplates something less than justice, something different than the "friendly and peaceful relations" for which Mr. Roosevelt speaks, for Finland.

But what Mr. Roosevelt said in behalf of Finland was well said and certainly should have been said.

THE PRESIDENT'S HOPE and the hope of the people of the United States and of the entire civilized world is that this brave and honest little democratic nation will not fall prey to vicious elements of invasion and conquest.

Probably little enough can be done for Finland if it is the intention and determination of Soviet Russia to put the whole weight of its arms into the merciless and greedy subjugation of the tiny Baltic country.

But if it was intervention and meddling to think and to say such a tragic crime should not be committed, then President Roosevelt has meddled honorably, and with the approval of his own people and the certain approbation of the future historians who will appraise these events.

What President Roosevelt suggests to Russia in this matter is the simple essence of international morality.

But of course Red Russia could not be expected to respond to an appeal for international morality.

A government that confesses, through its own official paper, Pravda, to nearly TWO MILLION POLITICAL EXECUTIONS of its own people and to the IMPRISONMENT OF NEARLY SIX MILLION others, can hardly hold justice and mercy to be virtues.

What measure of adherence to the principles of international morality can be expected of a government already steeped in the immorality of slaughter and oppression?

THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT of Russia is undoubtedly the bloody opportunist of these sad times.

Finland is undoubtedly pressing an all but hopeless case at such a court.

And President Roosevelt has perhaps wasted his breath on sentiments and hopes of merciful, moral and just dealing by such an authority.

But he has at least signified to Russia how it might, even thus belatedly, lay some small claim to the esteem and respect of the civilized world.

American opinion unitedly upholds and commends President Roosevelt for his intercession for a merciful disposition of the Finnish matter.

Europe as a whole might have a MERCIFUL PEACE by adhering to the wholesome principles he has advocated.

"BUREAUCRACY is in the ascendancy despite promises to reorganize Executive departments," complains Congressman Henry C. Dworshak in the national House of Representatives.

The Congressman is undoubtedly disturbed by the recently published report of the United States Civil Service Commission.

This report showed that during last August the Executive branch of the Federal Government employed 60,606 MORE persons than during the same month in 1938.

Also, the payroll for August of 1939 was $141,670,976—an increase of $9,286,153 over the payroll of the corresponding month in the previous year.

LIKE to go to Barber Bill . . . although I simply can't sit still . . . not even for a lollypop . . . for as the snippings downward drop . . . they tickle worse than feathers will . . . And then, to make it worse, Bill goes . . . and down your neck—on purpose—blows . . . But, keeping his face straight, he says . . . "Funny about kids nowadays . . . Funny a fine, big boy like you . . . just can't sit still till I get through . . . A lollypop? O. K.—here's one . . . although you don't deserve it, son."

March of Events -3- By BENJAMIN DeCASSERES

ADOLPH A. BERLE, Jr., special counsel for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, is all at sea about "private initiative."

Some time ago he said in an address in New York:

"Let us examine for a moment the idea of private initiative. Let us try to take it apart and see what it is. I myself in a good deal of reading on the subject have yet to see any one who tried to define it, let alone analyze it."

He says that all we do is more or less dependent on outside aid or "push." Strictly speaking, that is true. Nevertheless, private initiative is something distinct and definite in itself.

If Mr. Berle still requires a good definition of "private initiative" versus its absence, I invite him to go to Russia or Germany and speak on "my right to criticize Hitler and Stalin."

The fog in his mind will disperse—like THAT!

ONCE A YEAR a mausoleum in Hollywood Cemetery is banked with flowers ordered from every country in the world. Automobiles and pedestrians travel toward the grave, memorial notices appear in the London papers and a heavily-veiled woman visits the mausoleum and stands in silent prayer before the plaque.

On that plaque is "Rudolfo Guglielmi Valentino: 1895-1926."

The world-wide Valentino cult is the strangest cult of modern times. I did not know Valentino personally. As a screen actor he seemed to be just the usual run of the mine, although he was a good dancer, but are there not millions of good dancers?

Aside from the romantic sex-angle of this Valentino-worship (a kind of romantic neuroticism), I think it may be explained by an atavistic instinct to deify what is dead. The Greeks had a word for the Valentino-cult: Necrophilia.

AN ODDITY in the European mess is George Bernard Shaw playing with the war.

Shaw is an old revolutionary Socialist, a man who can juggle every one's ideas from Plato to Nietzsche and who would rather say a clever thing than a wise one.

In an article in the London "New Statesman" Shaw berates everybody in Europe but Stalin, who, he believes, has "outsmarted" both Germany and the Allies. In that he is right. It is Communism that the world will have to unite against some day—soon, maybe.

Shaw has a quaint plan to let Hitler attempt to conquer the world and then "stop him with Stalin and Roosevelt at our back."

"Our" means England. That, then, is the line-up proposed by Socialist Shaw—an alliance between England, Russia and the United States.

It is more likely that there might be an alliance some day of the United States, England, France and Italy against the universal enemy—Soviet Russia.

But just to show how upset Shaw is, he says that "liberty, democracy and everything else" has been abolished in England, although he is allowed to print in "The New Statesman" a furious article condemning Churchill and Duff-Gordon up hill and down dale and is even permitted by the censors to cable it to America!

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

ST. JOSEPH, Nov. 6—Mr. and Mrs. John P. Harris were the most delightful and understanding hosts. They gave us time to write this column in Hutchinson, Kan., arranged quiet and peaceful meals, and then held an informal reception in the hotel near the railroad station after the lecture.

As a result, everybody was happy and we had as much time as possible to do the one thing which I was really anxious to do while in Hutchinson—see the shelter belt planning.

Mr. F. A. Silcox, Chief of the Forest Service, had written me that I could obtain a very good idea of it by taking a three hour trip. His representative in that region, Mr. Russell Reitz, came for us at 2 o'clock and Miss Thompson and I started out. Our first stop was at some planting which had been done four years ago.

THE LAND is first cultivated and then a row of thick shrubbery is planted, followed by rows of different kinds of trees. One row is usually either fruit or nut trees, while in the middle the quick growing cottonwoods have already attained a height of 25 feet.

MRS. ROOSEVELT
Farmers No Longer Scoff

On the far side of these, the planting is reversed until you end up with shrubs again. Fences are strung on either side of the shelter belt to keep cattle out.

The weeds have to be kept down the first few years so as to permit the trees to gain their maximum growth. To achieve the best results in breaking the wind velocity, each shelter belt should be a half mile long.

About 14 or 15 old-time farm people—men and women—met me there. The forestry representatives told me that because this section of Kansas once had trees, some of the earlier settlers recognized their value and planted hundreds of trees themselves. They at once took advantage of the help offered by the Government and were its best co-operators.

One of the councilmen told me that now, the value of this planting had become apparent to many farmers, who at first scoffed at the idea that you could make trees grow and had considered it a waste of both money and time.

A white haired woman said to me that she had not believed in it, but had been willing to try it out because women were more willing to try new things than men. Now her family called the planting her forest, but they no longer made fun of her.

AN OFFICIAL told me that there were a few people still who refused to co-operate on the ground that it was the wrong administration making the suggestions. I remember well some of the gibes this idea evoked and it was certainly a satisfaction to see the results in better crops which wind protection had brought to many a farmer's land.

EZRA STONE MEETS REAL ACTRESS

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Ezra Stone, who directed "See My Lawyer," sat in the Astor Bar the other day and complained that his was a trying business—because every young lady he meets always wants a theatrical job. . . . "Just to give you an idea," Ezra suggested—stopped the first girl passing his table and asked her: "Miss, would you want to go on the stage?" . . . "Of course," she replied. "Can you help me?" . . . "But don't you understand," Stone berated her, "that to become an actress you need some background and training? Have you ever had any training?" . . . "Yes," the girl informed. "I studied under Ouspenskaya." . . . "Really?" asked the abashed Stone. "And theatrical background?" . . . "Yes," the girl replied. "My name is Maxine Marx. My father's Chico."

MARY MARTIN

WHEN John D. Rockefeller, Jr. drove the silver spike which marked the final completion of Rockefeller Center, John Percona, proprietor of El Morocco, brought out his cafe's book, which showed a profit of $9900 on that deal. . . . On the credit side of that account is recorded the $10,000 paid him by the Rockefeller's more than a decade ago, in return for his relinquishing his lease at 39 W. 49. . . . In another column is recorded the sum of $100—paid to the winners of his handsome couple contest of last year—Mary Martin and Winthrop Rockefeller.

MILTON SPERLING, the scenarist, and Betty Warner of the Warner clan spent their honeymoon in Europe. . . . When the German army rushed to the Polish border, the honeymooners sought shelter in neutral Norway. For the next three days they tried in vain to buy some English newspapers. . . . In desperation they hired a Norwegian translator—who seated himself slowly, read each newspaper line carefully and silently—and, after an hour, finally told them: "Well, nothing's happened yet. Let's go to lunch."

LOYD LEWIS, the Chicago critic, visited Frank Lloyd Wright, the famed architect. . . . He liked Wright's house so much that he got together all the money he could and said: "Will you build one of those dream houses for me?" . . . "Of course," Wright agreed, and began drawing the plans. . . . "In modern houses," Wright began, "we don't use any cellars, so that's cut. You won't need a garage, because we use a coverall effect for the car—so that's out. There's no upstairs, of course, and downstairs we don't have kitchens—just a range and a refrigerator. So there's your modern house—a living room and a bedroom."

MONDAY MORNING MUSINGS: It may be mere coincidence, and then again it may be an intimation that there will be a candidate for a Third Term . . . By accident or design, however, from several Democratic fonts of information we have been hearing lately about the numerous Federal appointments of Irish-American residents of Massachusetts which have been made under the Roosevelt administration. . . . Including, notably, two appointments to the Federal bench. . . . From these same sources, newsmen are being regaled with the following opinion. Unless the Democrats are lucky enough to draw Roosevelt as the standard-bearer in the election of next November, it will be many a year before they have a chance for a national victory again. . . . And it will not be until another Roosevelt is draftable—perhaps twelve or sixteen years hence—that the right candidate will be found. . . . This might seem to be meaning Jimmy. . . . If Jimmy runs for office at some future date, it will be as a resident of a state other than Massachusetts. . . . His closest friends are sure that the President's eldest son will remain in California. . . . Oh, what, by the way, has become of presidential-prospect Paul V. McNutt?

THE PRINCETON FOOTBALL PLAYER to whom Col. Dave Egan was referring in his Saturday essay was Rob Peters. . . . The Colonel informed his readers that this good athlete represented a $10,000 investment by Princeton or a Princetonian. . . . He predicted that the lad was about to pay a dividend on the capital investment. . . . He did. . . . He distinguished himself against Harvard, virtually winning the game by his onside. . . . Saturday was Bill de Correvant's afternoon to shine for Northwestern, too. . . . With most of the Big Ten schools eager to enroll Young de Correvant, and with offers pouring in from widely distant institutions from the Far West, South and East, it is highly unlikely that the most publicized high school football player of all time elected Northwestern as his Alma Mater simply because that school had a dozen letters in its name. . . . And as if there existed a spirit of goodwill to one another in the ranks of the student college athletes, Michigan's Harmon chose Saturday as his day to remain in eclipse, giving his less fortunate glory-mates a chance to snare the headlines.

WHEN DWIGHT DEERE WIMAN huris a party for the press it draws a good attendance, and yesterday's shindig at the Ritz-Carlton was no exception. . . . Mr. Wiman has ample resources to foot the bill as he is an heir to a huge block of stock in one of America's leading industrial corporations, an outfit devoted to the manufacture of farm implements. . . . (He also produces "hot" shows). . . . It is Mr. Wiman, himself, who proves the superior attraction to his great wealth, and one element of his charm is his ability to pass along an entertaining story which is fit to print. . . . Joe Rubin inaugurated a season of "Sunday Theatrical Nights" at "O Sole Mio." . . . The Brown Derby has hired a strong cast to support Sid Marian in the Boston comedian's first appearance in a night club, scheduled for tonight.

CAPRA, RISKIN UNITE; START FILM

By Louella O. Parsons

Robert Riskin

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 6.—Just this very second heard the story of the first Capra-Riskin independent movie and it sounds "terrific." Frank and Bob have bought "The Life and Death of John Doe" and it's right up Capra's alley. The hero is one John Doe, so disgusted with world conditions that he decides to commit suicide to free himself from the tragedy of present day civilization.

Just as "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" was a protest idea, so is "The Life and Death of John Doe." The hero is thrown in jail—he won't kill himself and the developments that follow will give both Frank and Bob plenty of material to build another success story. Success is what I mean with "Mr. Smith" hanging in the dollars.

JUNE PREISLER, the Big Boy Woman, who was locked in the gentlemen's powder . . .

JUNE PREISLER was out with Kate Smith when she "died" in a glasspaper, so glad to see her old friend that the very attractive young man, brother of the late Kate, had come along the Mohawk. . . . With her, K. H. Tol Collins and Bill Butler of the "Big Boy" women with their golden jubilee program.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT is a woman in a stunning dress of duobonnet and "The Great Gatsby" opening at the John Golden Theatre in New York, Nov. 21. She died at "21" with "The Great Gatsby" he left on a coast to coast lecture tour.

LESLIE HOWARD, who went to England shortly after war was declared, is back in town, having within sixty days. He is coming here to spend a suit for $95,000 which Egan Frank, Andy Sten's husband, is bringing against him. . . . Howard, of United Players, Leslie, it seems, had an agreement to make "Bonnie Prince Charlie" with P. H. R. . . . Under the terms of the contract, Howard was to appear in the specified which Howard's attorney will claim was not complied with.

DAILY STORY

Glamour Man

HELEN AND I HAD been married five years, and laughingly called ourselves "old married folks," when an event occurred which came near disrupting our home.

It had its roots in her past—a past which I had not shared, as I had only come to Pleasantville when I started out in business for myself.

I had heard rumors about a handsome, dashing youth who had grown up with her crowd, and who had been Helen's particular beau in high school days. But I gave him scarcely a thought—he wasn't in the picture.

However, he came into the picture, and in a big way, at the time I speak of. It seems that Harry had spurned Pleasantville as a stodgy little town, gone to New York, and had eventually become a famous orchestra leader.

THEN the great man decided to revisit the scene of his youth. As a publicity stunt, probably, he informed the world that he was going back to Pleasantville, which produced the "sweetest girls in the world," to pick out Mrs. Harry Number Three.

Harry put on a good show as master of ceremonies on the stage of our modern picture house.

The surprise of the evening came at the dance, when Harry, ignoring all the be-cured and be-ribboned young things, singled Helen out for his attentions all evening. The party was almost over, when I went in search of Helen, whom I had missed for the last few dances. Out on the verandah, I found her clasped in Harry's arms, alighted against the moonlight.

"So that's that," I said to myself, and tiptoed back in.

DRIVING HOME, I steeled myself for her confession. I felt as if she were a stranger to me. But she acted as if nothing had happened.

"Well, we put it over," she said gaily. And then at my stupefied "Put what over?" she told me, "Harry got cold feet about marrying a Pleasantville girl—he's having alimony troubles. So I helped him put up a smoke screen. We fooled everyone—except you, you wise old owl!" She squeezed my arm.

I never said a word. My triangle had vanished with her smoke screen.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

THEY THREW them to the crocodiles or fed 'em to the ants. That, in crude, concise terms, is how youngsters disposed of oldsters when the world was young. But if you think the fashion's vanished, you'd better guess again. FOR THEY'RE JUST AS STRONG FOR "RUBBING 'EM OUT" IN 1939 A. D. AS THEY WERE IN 1393 B. C.

RECENTLY, we asked whether YOUNG AMERICA SHOULD TAKE CARE OF OLD AMERICA OR LET UNCLE SAM DO IT.

Remembering our own youth—and a certain silver-haired little tyrant with laughing blue eyes—we had no doubt as to the answer. It was a 100 to 1 shot that youth would wreck our profile for even suggesting that Mom 'n' Dad should go anywhere but Home!

But did they? THEY DID NOT! We grieve to state that our profile is still extant. Not only did Young America fail to resent our query—but it wondered why the heck we made it anyway. Out of 7893 answers, 6935 were all for handing Dad and Mom over to Uncle Sam—and the quicker the better!

These 6935 young people made no apologies for their stand, offered no excuses. Had they asked to be born? They had not. Were they responsible for the struggles and sacrifices made by their parents in their training and education? They were not.

Said parents view: "I have been smacked into the ground if they hadn't come across. So what if they owe Mom and Pop for having done what they had to do anyway? Nothing!"

It was just bad bad luck if they'd bitten off more than they could chew. And BUT DEDICATEDLY up to Uncle Sam to balance the budget.

THIS undoubtedly, a fat majority will declare to be just and sensible. But I, for one, think it's damnable!

Such a move is more than a matter of economics. . . . goes deeper than federal law or obligation. It touches the very roots of life and character.

The greatest gift in life is life itself. And you can't pay that gift by a state ruling or a federal tax any more than you can bear a baby by mathematics.

You're the product of a weary man and a worried woman. And if you're not willing to protect them in their helplessness as they protected you in yours, you're a tramp. AND I DON'T MEAN MAYBE!

'Girl in Milk Bath' at Gayety

Milk, milk everywhere—30 gallons of it—but not a drop to drink this week at the Gayety Theater where Dorothy Henry is doing some footlights bathing in a Anna Heid.

La Henry's ablutions are said to be something and her dancing sensational. Her "Girl in the Milk Bath" stunt is advertised as happening for the "first time in America." What about that even more transparent bath, the one taken in champagne by an Earl Carroll chorus girl that landed the producer in the clink?

Others in the Gayety's "Too Hot for Paris" stage revue are Sally O'Day, Sonny Lovett, Herbie Faye, Lew Black and Irma Vogele.

New Star in Globe Show

Junoesque Jeryl Dean, toast of Paris, Cairo and Buenos Aires burlesque houses, makes her initial Hub appearance this week at the Globe Theatre.

Other burlesque beauties who will rise and shine during the stage revue are Frances McAvoy and Lillian Dixon, who have new and daring dance routines. John Eaton and his seven Naval Cadets and Kayla Foster are featured specialty acts.

For fun, Mandy Kay can't be rivaled. This week he has added to his collection of combs Boob Irving, Benson, Al Phair and Harry Ryan. The 30 Bernardolls are offering new song-and-dance numbers and the super-special vaudeville feature will be the modern dancing of Everett and Evelyn.

Ethel Merman In DuBarry Role

It wasn't so long ago that Ethel Merman, the vivacious chanter of fervid songs, made "Eadie" vibrate, and performed the unheard-of feat of keeping her (that is, Eadie) at the same time, a lady.

The men folks didn't think that such a shady character as Eadie could possess even the faintest semblance of a virtue, but then, that was before Miss Merman took up the cudgels and crusaded in Eadie's behalf.

The men threw their hitherto merciless criticism of Eadie to the wind after the heart-rending plea, Miss Merman's heart-rending plea. The slim and pretty

"Eadie Was A Lady"—the gentlemen were convinced. Appropriately enough, this happened in the musical production, "Take A Chance," Miss Merman took it, expounded her unfavorable cause, and triumphed.

On Monday evening, Nov. 13, at the Shubert Theater, B. G. DeSylva's musical comedy, "DuBarry Was A Lady," with music by Cole Porter, will make its debut.

Miss Merman, who is co-starred with Bert Lahr in this new production, will have a tougher task this time. As Madame Comtesse DuBarry, she will now be called upon to plead her own case! And judging from the aid that has been given her by Cole Porter, she should come out with flying colors, despite all obstacles.

The allusion to men in the audience to the exclusion of the female element is a justifiable one. For Miss Merman is a comedy actress and songbird after a man's heart, speaking literally now. Her songs make men heroes, and how they like THAT! To cite one of them, there was "I Get A Kick Out Of You" which was a boundless glorification of the male of the species. "Did the men love it? You bet!" says Miss Merman.

Gala Howard Burlesque

"Black and White" burlesquers, one of the biggest burlesque shows, to visit Boston in years, take over the Old Howard this week.

This spectacular revue will feature some of Broadway's snappiest sepien talent as well as topnotch performers recently associated with Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey's.

Diana Raye, colored comedienne, heads the "black" division, assisted by Sammy Gardner, Blanche Thompson, Otto Eason, Izzy Ringgold, Jay Arthur and the Three Jungle Boys.

In the white portion of the show are Joe Freed, comic; beautiful Diana Raye, the Six Antelaks, aerial acrobats late of Ringling's and Barnum and Bailey's; Helen Colby and Pat Pares, song and dance artists; Dorothy DeHaven, soubrette, and Bert Saunders, straight man.

Helen Twelvetrees At Copley Tonight

Helen Twelvetrees, familiar to "strawhat" patrons as well as to moviegoers, makes her Hub debut tonight at the Copley in "Personal Appearance," Lawrence Riley's hilarious comedy about the Hollywood star.

Others in the cast of Alan Grey Holmes' stock company are Erford Gage, Helen Walker, Vola Blakeley, Carey Walters, Alice Wiley, Wendell Corey, Catherine Cosgriff and Fern Foster. Mr. Gage is also the director.

No Wonder I Wanted This "Berkeley" Hostess Tray the Moment I Saw It!

Come to find out—the reason the glasses look SO expensive is that they are those very lovely Belgian kind you've paid lots more money for! There are six of these in rich, luscious colors. They have that sham bottom you moderns love! Besides the six glasses there are five individual glass dishes for relishes, etc. And these are in the smart HEAVY, polished glass that looks SO expensive. Then there's a cheese board. By the way the tray itself is something to get excited about—the glasses have individual places so there's no fear of finding them slipping all over the tray. The tray itself has a fine walnut finish.

ALL IN ALL—this Berkeley Hostess tray is a buy for $2.50. And you realize it the moment you look at it! Smart hostesses are reaching for them up! I advise you to get yours now—think what a charming Christmas gift it would be! See it in Filene's Gift Shop, Gift Shop Building, Franklin and Hawley street entrance. Write or phone Hubbard 4250 till 9 P. M.

Free!—With Your Roux Oil Shampoo Tint, a 60c Bottle of Roulac Nail Polish

L. Max, Jr., tipped me off to two marvelous values this week. First of all, for a limited time, he is giving with each Roux Oil Shampoo Tint treatment a full sized bottle of Roulac Cream Nail polish! Roulac polish flatters your fingertips just as Roux Oil Shampoo Tint brings to your hair lovely color—a glorious sheen! Then—for those who are not able to get in to town L. Max is offering Roux Oil Shampoo Tint for home treatment at only $1.10. Now in your own home you can use the same famous tint which is used in the well known salon of L. Max, Jr. It's easy to apply—when ordering (C. O. D., check or money order) send a small sample of your hair for accurate color selection. L. Max, Jr., is at 145 Tremont St. Dev. 7069.

Harry's 3-Inch Haircut Permanent

May be adapted to more than ten different styles and it's so easy to care for! $5—and only $4 in the morning—machine or machineless—including haircutting. Harry is a well known authority on permanent waving and haircutting and in styling, cutting and moulding the hair into the adorable little "Baby Curl." You're in luck to know about him and his low prices! His Lanolin oil permanent is marvelous for the hair and makes lustrous, natural curls. End permanent $3. The new short cut, shampoo and wave regularly $1.50, now only $1. HARRY'S BEAUTY SHOP, 493 Washington St., Dexter Bldg., Room 817. Dev. 8047. Open evenings.

Tuck a New Scarf Under Your Chin —With Three Initials 50c

Nothing "dresses up" your outfit like a fresh new scarf. You couldn't think of a safer or surer Christmas gift for your early shopping spree. That's why I rate these values as an A plus discovery! The crepe scarf comes in white, royal, blue, green, navy, wine and teal and with three initials in black or white costs a mere 50c. You'll find two other pure white scarves—one in a silky knit for 25c—the other with a satiny stripe and fringed edge at 35c. All three look MUCH more elegant than their price tags. In the Neckwear Dept. on the Main Floor of W. T. GRANT CO., 285 Washington St.

Belgium Had Share Of War 'Sky Raiders'

many bullets that had pierced it but having suffered no further damage since he had set it down so adroitly.

Then the captain conceived a daring plan and asked permission to execute it. The permission was given.

Rounding up his two mechanics and securing two volunteer gunners, the doughty flier obtained an armored motor car and the party started back for the sector.

HIERE found that the Belgian infantrymen had so carefully watched the crippled plane that the Germans had been unable to reach and destroy or capture it.

Out into No Man's Land the armored car was driven, with the captain, the two machine gunners and the two mechanics and their tools.

With the car as a screen and the machine guns as protection, the two mechanics set to work on the motor, as coolly as if they had been in the hangar back at the aerodrome.

The Germans peeked, the machine guns rattled and the Germans whisked down. From time to time came the intermittent cracking of rifles, as Belgian infantrymen on the firing step helped out in the vigil.

Ten minutes, and the mechanics had located the trouble with the motor. Busily they occupied themselves with wrenches; bits of wire and steel nuts.

Capt. Jaumotte climbed in and out of the cockpit, loading his own gun but removing that in the observer's office, lightening the plane of everything not essential.

Fifteen minutes, and the mechanics were putting back the plates of the cowlings. The captain climbed into his own cockpit and buckled on his belt.

Then one mechanic stepped back and rubbed greasy hands on his trousers. The other jerked up the list to see and looked up at the captain, grinning.

The first mechanic hurried around to the propeller and would it up, stepped back, Capt. Jaumotte nodded. The mechanic moved forward, grasped the high blade of the screw, lifted one leg and bore down mightily.

Defly avoiding the larger of the holes in the No Man's Land, Capt. Jaumotte rolled along the area between the lines, the dust in which death was mixed blew back in a cloud, his wheels kissed the earth lightly—and he was away.

Yes, the Belgians did their part.

NO MATTER how much time they spend on parties, hair-dressers and sports, a good many of our social butterflies put in a full forty hour week of good hard work donating their services to aid all kinds of charity work in Boston . . .

Typical is the group of post-debs and young society matrons who staged a Red Cross pageant as part of the entertainment at the luncheon and fashion show held at the Hotel Sheraton today for the benefit of the local Red Cross chapter . . .

Among them were Charlotte Cosby and Mrs. James M. Rothwell of the motor corps . . . Mrs. George Timmins and Mrs. L. N. Roberts, Jr., who teach braille; Phyllis Howe, Marian Minot, Mrs. Willard Bigelow, Mrs. Henry R. Scott, Olivia Ames, Millicent Leeds, Mrs. Carl Saelzer, Mrs. R. B. Davidoff and Rose Loring and Mrs. George Sturgis, both of whom are staff assistants . . .

In the fashion show an attractive bevy of the season's debs headed by Mary Wigglesworth served as models and Harry Marsh and his boys donated the musical accompaniment for the benefit of the worthy cause . . . Mrs. Amos Hollingsworth, Jr., Mrs. Wallace L. Pierce, Mrs. Robert Soutter, Mrs. S. Rides to Church With His Bride

FEW PEOPLE ever get a chance to ride in a $20,000 imported automobile . . . so when Arthur Dupee, Jr., found out that one of the wedding guests had offered her super car for his bride, Connie Turner, to ride to the wedding, he decided that even though it broke a precedent of long standing, he would ride to the church with her . . .

Sidewalk spectators were so in awe of the car and the radiant bride, few realized that the top-hatted gentleman helping her out of the car was the bridegroom who was to meet her at the altar in a few seconds . . .

NO MATTER what the season, passersby on Commonwealth ave. see a cheerful array of rare and colorful flowers at the Edwin S. Webster's house on the corner of Dartmouth st. and the avenue . . .

Throughout the winter the mass of bloom seen through the glass of the conservatory windows adds warmth and cheer to the bleak wintery outlook . . . and this autumn the flowers have even spilled out into the open . . . There's a small lawn in front of the house, where chrysanthemums of all colors are in full bloom—a rare sight in such a crowded city area . . . Mr. and Mrs. Webster are ardent horticulturists and delight in growing rare and exotic plants . . .

Returns From Paris for the Winter

BECAUSE OF THE WAR, Mrs. Bernard C. Carter, Jr., has temporarily forsaken life in Gay Paree where she and her husband, a prominent banker in the Paris office of Morgan and Co., have lived for a number of years . . .

Mrs. Carter has returned to Boston to spend the winter near her father and many of her girlhood friends . . . She has taken an apartment on Pinckney st., which, she says, reminds her of Paris, with its narrow thoroughfare lined with low, squat brick houses . . .

The debut and wedding of Mimi Carter (now Mrs. Philip Boyer, Jr.) and a number of other family celebrations, brought the Carters back to Boston on various occasions during their years of living abroad . . .

Philomatheia's Activities

Exceedingly popular are the Wednesday afternoon bridge parties, under the direction of the Philomatheia Club at the Chalet in Chestnut Hill, for the benefit of the club's scholarship funds.

Mrs. William J. Bannon of Waltham will serve as hostess at the party on Nov. 4. Mrs. Byron Tool, Mrs. F. A. McCarthy, Mrs. William Foley and Mrs. Charles Winslip share chairman duties for these matinee card parties.

Next Friday out at the Chalet, Mrs. Vincent P. Roberts, club president, will present the Very Rev. Robert A. Hewitt, S. J., of Western College, who will give an interesting talk to Philomatheia members.

Dr. Eddy's Question Box

SHOULD CHILDREN BE INOCULATED?

WHAT IS THE MAIN VALUE OF SPINACH?

By DR. WALTER H. EDDY
Director of Good Housekeeping Bureau

"We have two sons, aged 5 and 1 years. They are both healthy youngsters and are normal for height and weight. They very seldom have colds. We live in the country, where they are able to have sufficient vegetables, milk, orange juice, etc., for their every need. Under these circumstances, would you have these children inoculated against diphtheria and scarlet fever and vaccinated for smallpox? Would you have it done now, later, never, or not until an epidemic was in this vicinity?"

If we could be sure that epidemics would never spring up in country districts, we should not need to worry about protective measures. But past experience has shown that we never can tell when some carrier of a disease will get into a community and work havoc on its population.

For that reason we strongly recommend all measures that public health has developed to safeguard both children and adults against these possible accidents. View it exactly as you would fire and automobile insurance. You need not fear ill effects from inoculations if you make sure that the treatment is conducted by a competent physician.

Consult Your Doctor
"I have been advised to drink scophilus milk with milk sugar for constipation, and had find it helpful. How long do you think this should be kept up, and can it be harmful if used over a long period of time? What purpose does the milk sugar serve?"

M. A.
Any one who takes any measures for the treatment of constipation should have medical advice as to how long to continue the treatment. The principal of acidophilus milk lies in the fact that if this particular bacterium is in abundance in the digestive tract, it tends to keep down the organisms that produce inflammation, constipation, and the like. A certain group of these bacteria is always present in the digestive tract and they grow particularly well on milk sugar.

When you take acidophilus milk, you are putting extra numbers of these organisms into the system. When you take milk sugar, you are providing them with means to grow rapidly. How long such treatment should be continued is, as stated above, a matter on which

VITAMIN A is the anti-xerophthalmic vitamin, because its omission from the diet results in an eye disease called xerophthalmia. It is a component of butter fat and egg yolk. It is also present in the green leaves of plants, in certain roots especially those with yellow color (carrots, sweet potatoes, etc.), and to a more abundant degree in fish oils, such as cod liver oil.

your physician should advise. Try Something Else
"Is there any substitute for spinach when children won't eat it?"

W. M. N.
The main value of spinach lies in its good content of iron, its alkali-forming mineral, and its vitamin A, B and C content. All these elements, however, are present in other vegetables. Naturally no two green vegetables are exactly alike in composition, but there is an advantage in this fact in that it provides release from monotony. Try serving some of the other green vegetables to your children and find out what they like; then you can gauge the amounts of these to provide exactly the same things for which you are using spinach.

BAKED HAM ROUNDS

(Tested by Good Housekeeping Institute)

INGREDIENTS
1 boned, smoked butt (2 lbs.)
Peanut butter
About 1 1/2 c. milk

METHOD OF PREPARATION

Cut butt into crosswise slices 1/2" to 3/4" thick. Arrange in a baking pan and brown on both sides under the broiler. Pour off any fat that has cooked out; then spread each slice with some peanut butter, allowing a teaspoonful to each slice. Add milk, not quite enough to cover the ham. Then bake in a moderately hot oven of 375 F. for 75 to 90 min. or until the ham is completely tender, adding more milk if necessary. Note: These directions may be varied as you will; thickness of slices (depending on number of portions needed), more peanut butter, longer time in cooking if dinner is kept waiting (with lower temperature and more milk). SERVE with baked squash, buttered cauliflower and apple brown betty and tea for dinner.

CHEST COLD MISERY

FIRST—rub throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime.

THEN—spread a thick layer of VapoRub on the chest and cover with a warmed cloth.

RIGHT AWAY, VapoRub goes to work—loosens phlegm—eases muscular soreness or tightness—clears air passages—relieves coughing. And often by morning, most of the misery of the cold is gone.

Cooking

Old But Still Popular

By MARTHA LEE

Many folks like hefty, old-fashioned food in the fall. The whole some kind they used to get back home in mother's kitchen—cabbage and onions, things like that. These vegetables are plentiful in the fall, too, and we should plan to use them in as many different ways as possible.

Here now, for instance, is a brand new way to dress up an old favorite—a casserole of tender cooked cabbage and onion simmered in a tasty tomato sauce. It's the sauce that gives this dish special snap and savor. A quick-trick sauce of ready-to-serve cream of tomato soup made from vine-ripened aristocrat tomatoes cooked down in thick rich cream and seasoned with choice, old-fashioned spices. Try it for supper to-night.

CABBAGE-ONION-TOMATO CASSEROLE

1 lb. cabbage
1 lb. onions
2-3 cup (1/2 of a 10 oz. can) cream of tomato soup

1/2 cup buttered bread crumbs
Cook the cabbage and onions separately in boiling salted water just until tender, then drain thoroughly. Place cabbage and onions in alternate layers in casserole, drizzling each layer with butter. Pour the cream of tomato soup over the top. Sprinkle with buttered bread crumbs. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 30 minutes.

When you need to serve something pretty special on a minimum budget, try dressing up fat hamburgers with a spicy steak sauce. A savory sauce made by simmering bits of sauteed mushrooms and onions in a canful of cream of tomato soup seasoned with a dash of Worcestershire sauce to pep it up. And that is a sauce! A full-bodied, luscious sauce to step up the flavor of a dish. It's guaranteed good eating served over pork chops, a succulent steak, or warmed sliced roast meat.

STEAK SAUCE

1/2 cup chopped mushrooms
1-3 cup chopped onion
2 tbsp. butter
1 small (10 oz.) can cream of tomato soup
1/2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper

Fry the mushrooms and onion in the butter until slightly browned. Add the cream of tomato soup, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper. Simmer 1/2-hour. Serve hot over steak, hamburgers, pork chops or warmed-over sliced roast meat.

For a stout, substantial support sandwich, you can't beat a three-decker combination of delicately scrambled eggs and chips of sautéed dried beef tucked between crisp slices of toast and smothered in a tart tomato sauce. It takes a tasty sauce made of thickened cream of tomato soup to set off the fine flavors of this sandwich. Grand munching for midnight snacks or your schoolchild's noon-day lunch.

You Can Be Beautiful

New Opalescent Make-Up

By ARLINE GOULD

WHAT GOES ON here? So many sparkling faces, alive with something that's more than joy... well, it's the new "opalescent" make-up... and wait until you see it!

A woman who is famed for first superb color-sense, and who probably has started more color visions than anyone else termed this new-come "debutante," and surely the contrast is apt for this is shining, young, gay as bubbles in pink champagne.

They say the iridescence of a rare kind of pastel-tinted glass called "opaline" was inspiration for this exquisiteness. For years the fresh pinks, the celestial blues and baby whites of this authority's glass collection intrigued her so much that she wanted to capture them for milady's face. And now she has done it.

The opalescent make-up strikes a delicate balance between exquisitely "china frost" make-up and the natural richness of a wonderful complexion.

The lipstick is a translucent rose hue, a perfect accent for turquoise, saunders, champagne shades. Just a few of the many delicately cast tones you'll be wearing for awhile. The rouge has a damask-like tint. As for the eye shadow, it is a delicate blue tinged with turquoise, and with it you should use mascara of an intense night blue.

Last of all, there is an opalescent accent for your fingertips.

To learn the name of the Boston shop featuring this dazzling new opalescent make-up, phone Arline Gould, LLBery 4000, week-days until 3:30, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Love

Spends All on Other Women

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a working woman and support the entire family. My husband, who is 50 years of age, has taken up with a married woman much younger. He takes her to shows, out to dinner, but never has a cent for household expenses.

If I say anything about this, he says he is only a friend. What would you say—is this right?

To my way of thinking this is all wrong, and I'm afraid you've been too good to your Leithario in letting him pass up all the household bills and spend his money on the lady, who is "only a friend."

Perhaps, the remedy applied by another correspondent, who found herself in the same plight as you are, might work. Friend husband having plenty of money for the other lady, but none for the household bills—well, after several warnings, when he returned for dinner, he found the cupboard bare as Mother Hubbard's. The wife fed the children during the hours when her husband was salivating. It worked, at least in that case.

The Way You Look

By Roberta
Yates

SAYING "no" when Bill Jackson asked her to marry him was the most difficult decision Louise Mayer had made in the twenty years of her hitherto happy life. She liked Bill. She even loved Bill. The sight of his long legged, amiable figure made her heart crumple up and then expand, like an accordion playing sweet music.

But marriage isn't love; it's a life time. Louise meant to play for keeps, and she took it seriously.

At first she thought that Bill had everything. Sense, both of humor and common. He went places, but he also went to work next day. Quick on the uptake, but no jitter brain. Yes, Bill had everything—except.

Except that he didn't see Louise. He loved her, yes, but he didn't see her at all. He was blind, not even color blind. He simply did not see the things a girl does and wears to please a man, and a girl feels disgruntled if these are ignored.

Louise did not imagine herself to be a Miss America or even a Miss Torrington Falls. Indeed, which was where she lived; but she knew she was near tops in the lightweight, twony blonde division, and she liked to gild the lily with new gadgets.

IRKED LOUISE

At first, when Bill failed to remark a new dress or make-up she thought he was shy. Then she realized that he didn't see the pinking laterally. The time she painted her nails gold, he held her hand all evening, and later he complained: "Where'd I get this gold paint on my fingers?"

Louise tried one thing, then another, for she liked Bill and she was desperate to make him see her. In fact she would have been almost grateful if he had said: "You look awful in that hat." But he remained blind to a flamboyant plaid suit and deaf to the clank of ankle bracelets.

This irked Louise. She saw how it would mount up to an Alp if they got married. Imagine how crushed a wife would feel if she fussed over looking nice at the breakfast table, and, for all her husband saw, she might as well wear an old kimono.

Moreover there were plenty of men in Torrington Falls who did not appear, and said: "That's a cute pancake you're using for a hat," or "Did you buy your eyes to match the blue scarf?"

Men like Cory Williams or Jimmy Ford said these things. They trailed after Louise to do so. Of course Cory was a financial loss, and Jimmy was as weak as soda pop, but they did warm a girl's ego.

Cast of Characters in "The Way You Look"

LOUISE, who refuses a proposal by BILL, because he merely takes everything for granted, including Louise's smart clothes.

GERALDINE, the perfect girl.

It is possible, however, that Louise would have forgotten Bill's fault, and would have said "Yes," had he not chosen the night to propose which she was her first imported evening dress.

It was dad's gift for her 20th birthday and it had modernistic purple frogs climbing over what there was of a bodice, so Louise felt as swish as the Duchess of Windsor. Even Bill couldn't miss the purple frogs, she thought. On the way to the Country Club she gave him a hint.

"Like the dress?" Bill—goodness knows he tried to please—said: "I always have liked that dress." To make it worse, he added: "You look better in an old dress than most girls do in new ones."

Right after that, on the Club porch, he asked her to marry him.

She said sadly: "No, Bill, and it's no good explaining why. If you can't, you can't. We'd be stirring up unhappiness until I'd turn into a nag maybe."

Bill looked surprised as well as disappointed, because, for several months he had outranked others as Louise's steady, and such steadiness generally meant marriage in Torrington Falls. Yet Louise refused him so definitely that she refused to explain why.

"Well," said Bill. "Well, this sort of changes my plans. I guess I'll take that car agency in Muncie, because it would be tough sticking around here any longer, Louise."

CRIED HERSELF TO SLEEP

The joy went out of the club dance and of the purple frog dress. Louise went home early and cried herself to sleep.

Next day she heard that Bill had gone to Muncie. She knew she had done the right thing, but the usually pleasant month of May lost its luster, and the compliments of Cory and Jimmy, their savor. Louise decided to get away from it all.

She drove up to Lake Winnepegossee to see about opening up the summer cottage. No one came to the lake before June. She had the place to herself and she purposed to work hard enough to dull her hurting heart.

The garden was a shambles of dead pine needles and live weeds. Louise went to it. She put on a torn khaki shirt of her kid brother's, and dad's corduroy fishing pants, with a rope around the waist to hold them on, and she dug into that garden.

It rained a steady drizzle, but she kept at it. She needed a new wave anyway. She tripped on the pants and fell in the mud and picked herself up, pushed back her hair with a muddy hand and went on weeding.

Presently an auto siren tra-la-ed, and there, in a cream-colored car, was Geraldine Ames—with a man beside her. Louise had met Geraldine the previous summer, and could do without ever meeting her again. Not that there was anything wrong with Geraldine. She was good natured and a good sport. But she was the kind of a girl that other girls hate automatically, and men wonder why. This is the reason.

MADDENING TO OTHERS

A Geraldine is always as perfectly groomed as a dummy in a smart shop window. Note the "a-lways." Every girl contrives to look that way for special occasions; sometimes she manages it, frequently but, being human, a broken nail or a runner all too often betrays her. A Geraldine is not human. If she jumped from a burning building she'd land in the net with her hair sleek and smoke smudged as becomingly as an eye pencil. A Geraldine can attend a picnic in white slacks and never get a grass stain. In other words a Geraldine is maddening to other women.

And there she was in a pink sports number crisp from the banger. And there was Louise in corduroy pants and mud, and her hair stringing like a wet rope. And the man beside Geraldine was Bill Jackson.

"How sugary to find you here!" Geraldine squealed. "This is Bill Jackson. He wants me to buy this divine car."

"We've met," said Bill, not looking at Louise.

She didn't blame him for not looking at her—the way she looked—but he didn't have to fix his eyes on Geraldine, like a canary working at a cobra. He hadn't lost much time in finding comfort, and this car sale was just combining business with pleasure.

"How sugary!" said Geraldine. It was her word for this year. "You two know each other! Can we come in?"

She skipped to the porch, missing two mud puddles that would have trapped any girl save a Geraldine. She didn't get a speck on her white slippers, and the rain bounced off her complexion.

Then, behind the white car, appeared a battered gray one, bearing Cory and Jimmy. They yelled at Louise.

"Go you tried to escape the F. B. I."

"Fella, she's in diagraue. Take that mud off your face and admit your identity."

Then they saw Geraldine. A hush fell upon them. They took off their hats and advanced in a goose-step of awed admiration.

Louise went to the kitchen. Minus a day's start and a beauty parlor. She couldn't compete with Geraldine but she would lose gamely. She found that she had hung her dress under the leak in the roof. It oozed water; so did her silk purse and her powder puff. But there was no water with which to wash her face, for the electric pump had not been turned on.

WAITING FOR PERFECTION

She went to the lake, washed off the worst of the mud—and slipped and fell in it again on her way back. She merely wiped her hands on the tail of the khaki skirt.

She was beginning to take a morbid satisfaction in her own degradation. She felt so low that she need not worry. She had touched bottom. She could listen to Cory and Jimmy, her two former admirers, concentrate their choicest wit on Geraldine, without minding.

But Dante had a word for the spot where she sizzled as she watched Bill Jackson. He didn't talk; he just registered dumb wonder. She could have borne it had it been any girl save Geraldine. Now she saw why Bill hadn't bothered to note her dresses, her hairdos. He was just waiting for perfection in that line.

To rain cleared and somebody suggested going to the pavilion for hot dogs. Louise's dress was dry but wrinkled as a prune. Her hair was dry, too—in an Aldrade effect. She might have borrowed Geraldine's compact, but she had no fighting heart left. She simply let her nose shine, made the worst of herself and returned to the porch. Cory and Jimmy had started with Geraldine in their car. Bill looking wretched, was waiting in the white car.

"I can't take you, Louise," he said. "I just can't."

"Why not?"

"It's the way you look."

"All right, Bill Jackson, you tell me how I look," she dared him.

"You shine," said Bill, miserably.

"Maybe you'd like me better if I whitewashed my face with liquid powder the way Geraldine does."

"Does she?"

"You should know. You've gaped at her all afternoon."

"I looked at her to keep from looking at you. I didn't dare look at you. You shine like you had a candle inside of you," said Bill. "Damn it, I'm no poet, but that's how I feel. I'm kind of a moth about you, and I go floppy when I see the candle, and a fellow should have some pride after a girl's turned him down."

Louise took a steady stare at the future. There would be days when a wife was so busy that she wore an old house dress. And, if she lived to be 40 or 50, she might fade like Aunt Sarah, or develop a red nose like Cousin Belle. What a comfort it would be to have a husband who didn't see what she looked like; who always thought she was a shining candle. Louise put the final test.

"Bill, how do you like this dress?" He tried hard. "It's the prettiest new dress I ever saw you wear."

"Bill, dear," said Louise solemnly: "Will you please marry me?"

HUGH E. BRADSHAW War Not Source Of N. E. Recovery

Financial Editor

New England's industrial renaissance did not begin with the outbreak of war... And it is not dependent on either the war or belligerent buying made possible by the "cash and carry" program.

WHATEVER... Benefits accrue to this section, directly as a result of war, are distinctly of the bonus type... Something to add to a boom already in progress... The products most directly involved through embargo repeal are airplanes, arms and parts, and fine machine tools... Plants engaged in the manufacture of these items are already doing well... They may have more orders forced on them... But the effect will be to sustain, not increase importantly, present production tempos...

Textiles and other equipment may benefit further but they too are turning out the products likely to be in demand at close to top rates...

COMMERCE... Is the line likely to benefit most... Already export activities at principal New England ports are looking up... Expanded trade with new or re-acquired foreign markets means more shipping, accelerated land transportation to export points... And with shortened sea lane distances to EuRope as a selling argument belligerent material and goods buyers may well be convinced New England's excellent ports should be utilized... Thus if the section is indebted to war in any respect it will be for forcing recognition of great natural advantages upon shippers... Something mercantile leaders found...

Stock Prices Slip Off in Dull Trading

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—Recently buoyant aircraft stalled in today's stock market and other leaders retreated to minus territory.

A slow-down in dealings characterized the first session of the week. Losses, ranging from fractions to two points after the opening, were later reduced in many cases.

Only a few big blocks appeared on the ticker tape. Graham-Paige recorded an all-time trade of 12,000 shares, unchanged. Curtiss-Wright came out on a 10,000-share transfer, off 1/2.

Noon prices: Allied Chemical 177, off 1; duPont 179, off 1 1/2; U. S. Steel 74, off 1; Bethlehem Steel 84, up 1/2; Douglas Aircraft 85, off 1/2; United Aircraft 49 1/2, off 1/2; American Smelting 53 1/2, off 1/2; U. S. Rubber 41, off 1/2; Westinghouse Electric 112 1/2, unchanged; Sears Roebuck 81 1/2, off 1/2; Texas Corp. 47 1/2, off 1/2; Santa Fe 29 1/2, off 1/2.

On the easy side were Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Bendix, Cigna Martin, Boeing U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Western Union, Anaconda, Du Pont and International Mercantile Marine.

Continuing irregularity was attributed by brokers to the desire of some customers to clear decks for tomorrow's election holiday to further modest but steady selling of American securities from abroad and to the puzzling inability of prices generally to move along with business or to reflect industrial benefits which may come from belligerent purchasing in the wake of the new neutrality law.

Bonds were no better than steady and European markets displayed mixed trends.

Tariff Seen 1940 Issue

Special to Boston Evening American
WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—Something akin to the ancient Republican spirit was shown in that debate in the Senate the other day on the tariff.

He is an issue upon which the Republican party has won many a victory, and upon which the Democrats have as often gone into political oblivion.

If the tariff becomes a paramount issue in 1940—and this writer has been expressing that opinion for two years as the devastating effects of the Hull reciprocity policy have become more and more apparent—the New Deal coalition may be confronted by its most serious split.

The Tariff Act of 1934 delegated the tariff making power from Congress to the President, and Mr. Roosevelt delegated it to the ardent free trader, Mr. Hull.

London Metals Steady

BUSINESS UPTURN FOR '40 FORECAST

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—In the first official government forecast of 1940 business prospects, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics predicts a moderate increase in industrial and business activity, a larger income for consumers and improved markets for most farm products.

The upturn will be accomplished, the Bureau said, by slightly higher wholesale commodity prices.

Factors which it said should contribute to economic improvement included:

Prospects for increased exports to warring nations in Europe and to neutral nations because their usual sources of supplies will be restricted by the conflict.

A "considerable" increase in the output of automobiles and other durable consumers' goods.

Prospective increases in capital expenditures, particularly by railroads, utilities and manufacturing concerns.

Less cautious buying policies on the part of business men generally.

The Bureau said, however, that the New Year may see sharp fluctuations in industrial activity because of uncertainties arising out of the war and the necessity of making adjustments in inventory stocks accumulated under the speculative stimulus of the war.

"The timing, duration and intensity of any recession of this nature during 1940 will depend largely," the report added, "upon the amount of excess inventory accumulation, the extent to which actual consumption and exports increase, the movement of commodity prices, and the extent to which the periods of readjustment in the several lines of production coincide."

While saying that the war had increased prospects for better conditions in 1940, the Bureau said that it was "probable that even had there been no war, business activity and consumer incomes would have experienced some improvement."

It said no definitely unfavorable situation was noted in any important industry.

See New High For Steel in Arms Repeal

CLEVELAND, Nov. 6 (AP)—The effect of the embargo repeal on steel demand has not yet been determined, the magazine Steel and today, although potential export business has figured in the constantly increasing steel operations.

Last week the industry planned back at October activity, and found: Pig iron production at the highest level for any October, and within 7 per cent of the all-time high set in May, 1929.

A daily average output of 116,990 tons—22 1/2 per cent larger than for September and 75.5 per cent ahead of October, 1938.

A total of 188 blast furnaces active on October 31—19 more than on September 30.

A further increase in the number of stacks operating was predicted for November.

The past week saw another one-point rise to 93 per cent in the steelmaking rate, establishing a new weekly tonnage record.

How much current shipments were being used to build up inventories was undetermined, but Steel said, "strictly speculative tonnage bought in anticipation of higher prices and without indicated need for the material is regarded as small."

There was still no announcement of the first quarter prices, and the delay bolstered a belief advanced "will be neither sweeping nor large."

CONSUMER INCOME CALLED 'TOP HEAVY'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (INS)—Showing a "top-heavy" national consumer income, the national resources planning board today reported to President Roosevelt that 178,000 families in the country's highest income bracket received nearly as much income in 1935-36 as 13,000,000 low-income families.

About one-half of one per cent of the nation's population, composed of families earning $15,000 or more, received nearly 10 per cent of the total consumer income of $59,300,000,000, which was nearly equal to the income of the "lower third," made up of families earning less than $780 during the fiscal year, ending June 30, 1936.

Its extensive study of incomes and consumer expenditures was based upon figures obtained from 300,000 "sample family units" representing all major income groups, gathered by the labor and agriculture departments.

The board observed, in a letter accompanying its report, said: "The figures disclosed are significant not only to businessmen concerned with the market for consumers' goods, but also to all citizens concerned with problems of economic opportunity in a democracy."

Purchasing power of the nation was expended in the year by 29,400,300 families of two or more, person families, the report showed.

Out of the $59,300,000,000 total income, about 85 per cent was spent for current consumption, 4 per cent for gifts and contributions and one and one-half per cent for taxes. Ten per cent, or $6,000,000,000, was saved.

The $50,000,000,000 used for current living expenses covered a wide range of commodities and services, but food, shelter and clothing absorbed more than three-fourths of the total outlay for consumption.

I BELIEVE THE two outstanding feats of Saturday's big football program were (1) Boston College's smashing fourth period rally that gave it a 13-to-7 victory over highly rated Auburn and (2) Harvard's startling comeback against Princeton that enabled it to hold the Tigers to a 9-to-6 victory.

When a football team makes a poor showing, sports writers and fans immediately whack the head coach as hard and often as possible. Therefore, I think Frank Leahy, coach at Boston College, and Dick Harlow, head man at Harvard, are entitled to the lion's share of the glory for the splendid showings of their elevens.

A minor feature of Saturday's games was Notre Dame's 14-to-0 triumph over the Army. The "luck of the Irish" wasn't needed to down West Point. At that Notre Dame disappointed some of its Boston supporters who figured that the South Bend eleven would beat the future Generals by at least three touchdowns. I am not so exacting and will always compromise on a two-touchdown victory. In fact I'll accept a one-point triumph provided I have a few stray bobs riding on the right team.

Ask any of the 20,000 cash customers who saw Boston College score its glorious victory over Auburn, and they will tell you the Maroon and Gold eleven has what it takes to go big time.

Frank Leahy has given the Boston College players the enthusiasm and football knowledge they needed. When Leahy took over the coaching job at the Heights, it was necessary for him to make drastic changes. Frank installed the Notre Dame system of play, and it took some time for his players to absorb their lessons in modern football.

Leahy knew Boston College would be beaten by Florida, but he also knew that later on his team would get clicking and score impressive victories. Boston College got going against Temple, and continued to play heads up football against Auburn.

You may credit Leahy with the new order of things. Leahy is young, and you may expect to see Boston College football keep marching forward.

Boston College Can Now Improve Schedule

WITH BOSTON COLLEGE winning and drawing large crowds, Athletic Director John Curley will find it easier to get better games. In football, it is usually necessary to guarantee a visiting eleven. When gate receipts have been questionable, Boston College has hesitated in placing a large sum of money on the line for the invading eleven.

Once Boston College becomes established as a big attraction at the gate, John Curley can make suitable offers to leading college teams. Back in his mind I know Curley is always dreaming of eventually arranging a game between Boston College and Notre Dame. The boys who admit they know it all will tell you that such a contest cannot be scheduled, but such is not the case. With the correct athletic setup at Boston College, anything is possible. Even a game between Boston College and Harvard.

Time and patience can overcome most obstacles in life, and a football schedule certainly isn't an exception.

Meanwhile New England's football public will continue to root for Frank Leahy's Boston College team to keep adding new lustre to its name. Those persons who were fortunate enough to be sitting in on the triumphs over Temple and Auburn are convinced the team at the Heights has the necessary ability to do big things on the gridiron this year.

Harvard Now Faces The Army

IT WILL BE an improved Harvard team that will oppose the Army in the Stadium on Saturday. The game in addition to being a good test between well coached elevens will have all the color and sparkle that goes with this annual classic. The marching Cadets can give a thrill that cannot even be equalled by a winning touchdown pass.

The Harvard eleven has been slow in reaching its peak. This was particularly evident in the Dartmouth game. The weak opposition Harvard received from the University of Chicago and Bates did not help it to get properly prepared for teams like Penn and Dartmouth.

Harvard finally got going against Princeton, and, while defeated by a 8-to-6 score, displayed some brilliant football. Harlow has a team composed chiefly of sophomores, and it has been necessary for him to school his players in the fundamentals of the game. Now that Harlow's young team is clicking the Army will experience serious opposition. West Point pointed for its clash with Notre Dame, and it may experience a let down this week.

Jockey W. L. Taylor's Brilliant Record

JOCKEY W. L. TAYLOR, who is receiving his mail at Narragansett Park, made some 25,000 race goers forget football and such things as he booted in five winners. It was one of the most amazing exhibitions of riding in New England this season.

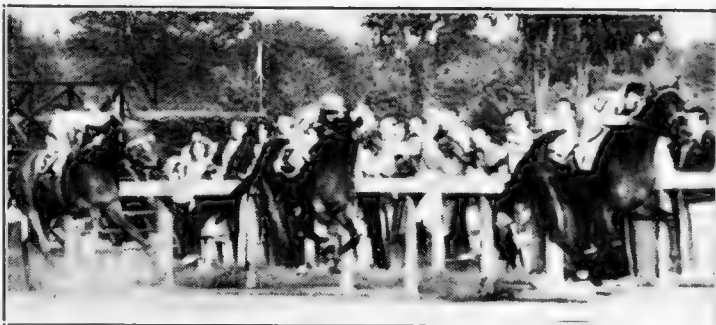

If one had played all of the Taylor mounts on Saturday, he would have ended up with plenty of fresh money. U-Boat, $88.50; Miss Monna, $12.60; Ferdinand, $22.10; Gold Mesh, $21.60, and Helen's Lad, $9.70, were the Taylor winners.

While Taylor has been bringing in winners, Dave Wilson has been setting a merry pace for handicappers. On Saturday Dave had four winners—One O One, Napper Tandy, Helen's Lad and Florian 2nd.

Don Mead paces back into the Narragansett picture this week, and will challenge Taylor for the right to set the pace for the jockeys.

The handle of $516,380 at Narragansett on Saturday proved that even football could not stop interest in horse racing and in betting.

Challedon Dodges Bimelech Race Bid

WONDER HORSE—Here's Bimelech winning 36th renewal of $40,000 Hopeful Stakes at Saratoga. Col. Bradley knew he had a champion when Big Bim took this race, and subsequent races strengthened his conviction. Bimelech, undefeated, won his sixth straight Saturday when he took the $15,000 Pimlico Futurity.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 6 (AP)—Owners of Challedon and Kayak II, the horses which ran one-two in the Pimlico Special, indicated today they would not accept Col. E. R. Bradley's offer to match his two-year-old champion, Bimelech, against any comer under rigid conditions laid down by the Kentucky sportsman.

CLEVELAND 'PURES' FACE BOSTON ELITE

A highly-praised innovation in New England amateur boxing circles is slated tonight at the Arena when six invaders from Cleveland, in the 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 and heavyweight classes, battle the classic local boxers in these divisions.

The rounds will be of two-minute durations, with each bout including five rounds.

The usual amateur fight consists of three-round bouts, each round lasting three minutes. The Cleveland squad is reputed to be a very powerful aggregation, strong enough to furnish lively battling for the N. E. boys.

Rounding out the program will be an open division in the 147's, heavyweights and 160's, and a novice class in the 125's. Perhaps the outstanding local hope is Johnny Leonard, New England king, in the bantamweight division and in the best shape of his short but spectacular career. Joe O'Donnell, middleweight monarch, will find the going extremely tough, facing a master in the art of boxing in Joe Maxim, who is labelled as being Ohio's strongest hope to annex an inter-city crown. Here's the lineup in brief:

118 Pounds—John Leonard, Taunton, vs. Benny Calla, Cleveland.

126 Pounds—William Daley, Roxbury, vs. Tony Lenese, Cleveland.

135 Pounds—Bernard Howard, Whitinsville, vs. Joe Pirone, Cleveland.

147 Pounds—Billy Tordiglione, Boston, vs. Ed Denroe, Cleveland.

160 Pounds—Joe O'Donnell, Everett, vs. Joe Maxim, Cleveland.

Heavyweight—Tony Ferry, Fall River, vs. Steve Klinkowsky, Cleveland. Among the bidders already entered in the open classes are Eugene Bolden, Providence; James White, Fall River, and Joe McDonald, Medford, in the 147. Lou Vivolo, Boston, George Elder, Newton, John Malowier, Bridgewater, and John Thompson, Fall River, in the 160.

In order to give the fans plenty of stiff punching, the club has added an open heavyweight class.

BRONCOS' TOP SCORER

Jack Roche the Santa Clara full-back leads the Broncos backs in scoring with three touchdowns. He caught passes for a touchdown against Utah, another pass for a touchdown in the USF game, and in the Purdue game last Saturday plunged over for a score.

Eaglets Battle Crusader Frosh

Boston College's freshman eleven begins work today for its annual game with the Holy Cross yeastings at University Heights Saturday. With Mike Holovak back in action for the Eaglets they will be out to trip the Crusader cubs.

W. L. Brann said his Challedon, the "horse of the year" and three-year-old champion, was being "unwound" for the year and had earned a vacation from racing.

"Otherwise," Brann said, "it would have been a privilege to run a match race with so fine a sportsman as Col. Bradley." Charles S. Howard, whose Argentine-bred Kayak II was beaten by Challedon in the special said his horse was trained for long races and there wasn't time before the November 17 deadline to prepare him for as short a dash as Bradley stipulated.

Meanwhile Bradley stood ready to accommodate any owner who thinks his horse can beat Challedon on the Kentuckian's own terms.

This two-year-old youngster, Bradley advised the world in general and horse-owners in particular, is ready for all comers, but any challenge-taker will have to put his steed at the post by Nov. 15 because Bimelech is going down to the Bluegrass country shortly to get rested and ready for the next Kentucky Derby.

PURSE: IMMATURAL

Bradley showed the way to what may be a sequel to Wednesday's "Special" with the offer to race his two-year-old champion against any horse in the "United States" under these conditions:

The race should be for a mile and seventy yards or a mile and a sixteenth, weight-for-age, over a fast track between now and Nov. 15 at Pimlico.

Bimelech would show his speed in such a race for as little as $10, Bradley said, with the purse to be put up by the Maryland Jockey Club and with side bets optional.

Prospects for another duel on the speed-astounded Pimlico strip brightened with Alfred G. Vanderbilt's assurance that the Jockey Club would co-operate in scheduling the race if anyone accepted the challenge.

BIDDING FOR BLUES—These two handsome cocker spaniels are among the great field in the 18th annual show of the Cocker Spaniel Breeders' Club at Horticultural Hall Nov. 17 and 18. Cockers now have a big lead over all other breeds, in numbers and popularity. Their show is the top specialty event on the dog calendar.

Clarion Flash College King

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—Although his team's all-winning record was slightly smirched by a tie, Bill Sheridan of Clarion (Pa.) Teachers added to his laurels as the leading scorer in eastern football during the past week. He scored all Clarion's points in a 12-12 tie with Indiana Teachers and thus raised his total for six games to 74 points.

Sheridan, who insists upon handling most of the credit to the blocking back, "Big Joe" O'Brien, has made 11 touchdowns and kicked eight extra points.

Hawks Entertain Catholic U. At Fenway Park

One of the star football teams of the east will show its power and skill at Fenway Park on Saturday afternoon. Catholic University, winner of six straight games, comes here to play St. Anselm's of Manchester, N. H. It will be the first appearance of a Catholic University eleven in Boston.

Catholic University is a prominent candidate for the Orange Bowl or Sugar Bowl post season game. The Fighting Cardinals have scored 117 points, an average of 24½ a game. Opponents have scored only 20. Detroit was beaten 14 to 13 and Detroit and Tulsa are the only teams that have scored on Catholic University.

BROTHERS ACE BACKS

Rocco and Carmen Birro, brothers, will be featured at Fenway. In five games Rocco, the fullback, scored five touchdowns. Carmen succeeded in 10 of his 11 attempts to kick a goal in the try after touchdown, by placement.

Carmen is 20 years old and weighs 212 pounds. He is six feet one inch tall. Rocco is a 200-pounder, six feet tall and 21 years old. Dutch Bergman, head coach, and his assistants, Fred Cotton and Wayne Millner, are Notre Dame men and the team plays Notre Dame football.

As Boston College and Boston University are away from Greater Boston, this will be one of the two important games here Saturday.

HAWKS RESTED

St. Anselm's did not play last Saturday and should be rested completely for this game. The Hawks were beaten by Boston College, but the latter is a strong football team and a defeat suffered in a game with the Eagles is no disgrace.

Cleo O'Donnell, who produced a surprisingly strong team last year when St. Anselm's went through undefeated, is sure that the Hawks will be at their peak against the Cardinals. Jackson Cannell, O'Donnell's assistant, was once his star football pupil when Cannell was a scholar at Everett High and O'Donnell was the star school coach of this area. O'Donnell and Cannell are grid masters and it will be their style of play and football against the famed Notre Dame system.

CANADIENS TOP HAWKS

MONTREAL, Nov. 6 (INS)—Les Canadiens ushered in the National Hockey League season by trouncing the Chicago Blackhawks, 8-2, before a crowd of over 6000 fans here.

With Chicago's defense completely disorganized, Montreal had an easy night, blasting through for tallies in each of the three periods. A brace of tallies off the sticks of Harold March and Johnny Gottselig in the closing frame saved the invaders from a complete rout.

Red Wings Deadlock Rangers in Thriller

DETROIT, Nov. 6 (INS)—Left Winger Dutch Hillier's goal with less than three minutes left in regulation time enabled the New York Rangers to get a 1-1 tie with the Detroit Red Wings in their National Hockey League opener before 10,000 persons here. Both sides went scoreless in the overtime period.

The Red Wings staged a comeback after defeat in their first start by the Black Hawks. They gained the lead on the New Yorkers midway in the second period when Gus Geisbrecht, lanky center starting his second year with Detroit, skated in alone and sent a shot blazing past Dave Kerr from 35 feet out.

LEAHY SPIRIT LIFTS B. C. BACK INTO TITLE RACE

READY FOR TITAN HUNT—Happy that their big test with Auburn is successfully back of them are these star members of the Boston College squad. They had little rest ahead today, though, with a scrimmage listed at the Heights as first tuneup for the Detroit trip of this week. Frank Leahy was forced to start hard work early, with the ride west to rob the team of a day's work.

By DAVE GLUECK

An indomitable Frank Leahy spirit sparked the fighting Eagles to a last-minute win over poised and powerful Auburn as Boston College made a comeback bid for national football recognition. The home towners threatened 56 minutes before their insistent drive paid off with a daily double of two touchdowns in the last four minutes of play.

There were mistakes in the game. At least once a better choice of plays would have meant an earlier tally for the Leahy lads, and their pass defense showed that it's still vulnerable in several spots, but the important thing is that the boys refused to take a licking, refused even to accept a tie, when the coaches themselves would gladly have settled for a seven-seven final.

Throughout the game as Alabama mentor Jack Meagher afterwards averred, B. C. played offensive football, and never stopped trying to make points.

EAGLE CHARGE TERRIFIC

Early in the second period Vito Ananis ran 45 yards to put his team near the hot stripes for the first time, but Cheatham effectively ended this threat when he intercepted Charley O'Rourke's pass and sprinted 80 yards down the edge of the field to score for Auburn behind a quintet of blockers that appeared as suddenly as though dropped by parachutes behind the enemy line.

The Eagles, with particular emphasis on the Walt Dubzinski-Frank Davis duo, charged back up the field to the Auburn two-yard line in one of the most consistent power attacks ever seen in Fenway.

B. C.'s line started with the speed of a squirting hose, and the trained power of a circus elephant.

George Kerr and Walter Dubzinski, guard and center, led the charge with fullback Davis plunging after them five times in succession.

B. C. LINE EQUAL TO ANY
This was the most impressive spot in the Boston victory and showed beyond a doubt that this line offensively and defensively would give any team in the country, including Holy Cross, plenty of problems.

Because the Auburn secondary crowded up behind Capt. Howell's seven-man frontier to control this running attack it mortgaged its pass defense, and made the last minute aerial circus possible.

Chuckling Charley redeemed his scoring boomerang, by pitching three perfect strikes to retire the other side. Then with an almost vulgar display of versatility he dodged through the Plainmen for 50 yards, and another near score on the last play of the game.

Coach Meagher gave slim Charles the credit for defeating his club but of the Eagles generally he said: "They are the best team we've met this year. My boys made their top effort, and it just wasn't enough. Boston College is at least as good as Tulane."

SCRIMMAGE TODAY
Frank Leahy was delighted over the battle put up by his charges, and pointed out that "the boys had learned a valuable lesson, in refusing to be contented with a tie."

"They can't be contented with a tie in life," he said. Then he went on to declare that there would probably be a long scrimmage at the Heights today in preparation for Detroit.

The Eagles play this one away from home, which means one less practice. As a result, work starts earlier in the week and will be more intensive than ever before.

HANLEY SEES HOPE FOR B. U.

Boston University met its first major foe last Saturday and was humbled 26 to 0 in the hands of Manhattan.

Yet, strangely enough, Coach Pat Hanley is not greatly displeased. Any coach hates to lose, but in the Terriers' loss he saw possibilities. In the first place, the Terriers did a great job in stopping the intricate Manhattan running attack and, secondly, the Terrier running plays looked much better than at any other time this year.

The Jaspers rolled up four touchdowns but two were presents, one a fumble and the other a desperate attempt on the part of the Hanley-men to pass from their own end zone. That resulted in an interception and touchdown.

Manhattan's first touchdown was a 40-yard pass that caught the Terrier secondary napping, but the second score was well earned.

Boston University was not completely outclassed and with expected improvement figures to be forthcoming before the year is over. It's Cincinnati next Saturday, away, and the Bearcats are in for a tough afternoon. The Terriers' only concern is over the injuries Ray Needham, veteran center, and Jim McDonald, brilliant end, suffered last Saturday. Both stars came out of the fray limping with bad knees and their loss would be a body blow to the Terriers.

The Monday Morning Quarterback

By BILL GRIMES

With the exceptions of Dartmouth's margin over Yale, Harvard's courageous stand against Princeton and the sensational come-back that Boston College staged to beat Auburn, there's little opportunity for comment on the part of Monday Morning Quarterbacks concerning games played by New England colleges Saturday.

It was a foregone conclusion that Pat Hanley's terriers didn't have a chance in a million of stopping Herb Kopf's Jaspers from Manhattan. Despite setbacks by Holy Cross and Duquesne, Manhattan comprises a fine ball club.

The Bowdoin Polar Bears have the pole in the race for the Pine Tree State title, for after their two-field-goal victory over Al McCoy's Colby Mules, they slipped under the wire Saturday with a 7 to 0 win over Bates.

Unless Fred Elice is able to snap his Black Bears of Orono out of a two-game losing streak, the Maine title will return to Brunswick.

BROWN COMES BACK
While waiting for the second round of the Little Three series, Wesleyan stopped the Coast Guard and Amherst beat Mass. State but Williams was knocked off by Union.

After losing to Colgate, Holy Cross and Princeton, the Brown Bears turned on Tufts and almost annihilated the Jumbo, while the University of New Hampshire was battered by Rutgers and R. P. I. took a touchdown decision from Vermont.

Trinity College turned up with its fourth win of the season and shares the honor with Dartmouth of being one of the two undefeated New England teams. Trinity was tied by Union, which is also undefeated.

Judging from Jack Meagher's comments, Boston College is represented by a far stronger team than even the keenest football analysts in these parts realize. The Auburn mentor rated the Eagles as the equal of Tulane.

ELIA PUSHOVER

One fact concerning Boston College is very obvious. The squad is showing to better advantage in every start. Naturally, the Eagles still make mistakes but they are mastering the fundamentals of the Notre Dame system and they are going to be a tough club for any team to beat from here in.

After watching Dartmouth smack Yale around and come up with a 33 to 0, I don't know whether the experts underrated the Big Green or overrated the Elia.

Although the odds were set at 7 to 5 that the Indians of the North would beat Yale, according to the advance information (I hadn't seen either team in action) the outcome was a toss-up.

Judged solely on its performance on Saturday, the current Elia couldn't beat any team worthy of being on a Yale schedule. Football has hit a new low at New Haven.

GREEN PULLED PUNCHES

The Big Green scored five touchdowns. If Earl Blaik had elected to turn on the "heat" the Elia would have been buried under an avalanche of points. The Indians began to pull their punches in the second period and before the final period drew to a close, every player on the trip with the exception of Capt. Whit Miller, who is on the injured list, saw service.

Dartmouth sprung a new offense on the Elia. At least, it showed part of one. It could have used that A-B-C attack with which it stomped through its victory over Harvard and still preserved its undefeated honors.

Yale's running attack wouldn't click against R. U. A. (Kimball Union academy, to the non-Dartmouth readers). For the Elia to gain only 20 yards by rushing in 60 minutes of play against the Green Bay Packers, much less Dartmouth, would be a disgrace.

And, I'm not convinced that Yale netted 20 yards rushing. The Elia gained 13 yards in the first half on running plays and lost 22 for a net gain of MINUS 9 yards.

In the second half ball carriers were thrown for a loss of 12 yards on three rushes and gained a total of 33 on the seven plays.

And the 35 includes a 19-yard run by Freddie Burr, who, unable to find an uncovered receiver and threatened with a 10 to 12-yard loss, tucked the pickin under his arm and dashed down the Dartmouth side of the field from the Big Green 49 to the 30.

According to my notes, Yale netted just 14 yards by rushing. The Big Green had the Elia bottled up all afternoon. It was really pitiful to watch Yale, which was completely outclassed.

The statistics show that the Elia gained 139 yards via their aerial game. But, the fact of the matter is that Yale's forward passing attack isn't much better than its running plays. It used a hit or miss type of pass, which was so vulnerable that nine forwards were intercepted by the Big Green.

The best that Yale can hope for is possession of the cellar berth in the race for the Big Three title.

IT CAN'T HAPPEN HERE—But it did happen, with Bob Zupke's Illinois eleven beating mighty Michigan, 16 to 7, in the season's major upset. Here Smith of the Illini, indicated by arrow, hammers across for a fourth period touchdown to clinch the decision.

Moynihan Holds Lead for Season As Grid Picker

Frank Moynihan showed champion selector's form as he galloped down the stretch on Saturday with only one error, to maintain his percentage margin in the Boston American sports department grid sweepstakes.

Dave Glueck, like Moynihan, had only one error in his week-end choices. Both went down on Yale, picking the Blue by small scores. Dartmouth's runaway ruined their week-end.

Old Man Consensus did very well for himself, with only one miscue. He named Auburn over Boston College, 15 to 12, and the Eagles' dramatic comeback wrecked the old boy's day.

Jack Conway, Bill Grimes and Fred Lane were runners-up, with two mistakes each, while Herb Finnegan and Will Connors were thrown for three losses apiece.

DETROIT LIONS COACH Backfield Lift Encourages EARN'S 'MIRACLE' TAG Harvard for Army Game

CHICAGO, Nov. 6 (AP)—"Gloomy Gus" Henderson is leaving himself wide open for the "miracle man" tag as his Detroit Lions, looking more impressive each week, roll over the opposition in the National Pro Football League.

Gus' Lions are a roaring success in his first year as coach, now having a record of six victories in seven games for the top spot in the league's Western Division and the best mark of any team in the loop.

COAST RECRUIT DOES IT
A crowd of 43,000 turned out to see a game in Detroit—turned out to see the Lions triumph again.

This big turnout and the 10,337 gathering for the Bears-Packers game at Chicago accounted for the big majority of the 106,407 persons who attended Sunday's four games.

Detroit has three tough tests ahead, but none harder than the one the Lions passed Sunday in turning back the New York Giants, champions and undefeated in 18 games previously.

The Lions connected for four field goals, a new record for one game, and a touchdown at account for an 18-14 margin.

Phil Martinovich, college of the Pacific recruit whose release from the Cincinnati Bengals cost the Lions $1000 a few weeks ago, boosted three of the goals and Chuck Hanneman the other three-pointers. The touchdown came on a short pass from Dwight Sloan to Kent Ryan.

The Giants took the lead in the third period when they pushed across two touchdowns, but only in this period did they play the Lions on even terms.

Detroit outgained the champions in the air and on the ground. The defeat left the Giants and Washington tied for first place in the Eastern Division.

OSMANSKI STARS

The Redskins eked out a 7 to 6 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles, Sammy Baugh tossing a scoring pass to Charlie Malone. Bo Russell added the point from placement. The Eagles counted on a pass, but failed to get the all-important extra point.

The most colorful battle of the day went to the Chicago Bears, who outlasted the Green Bay Packers, 30 to 37.

Four times the Packers took the lead and the same number of times the Bears, using ground and air plays with equal effectiveness, came back to tie or go ahead. They finally went ahead to stay on Bill Osmanski's touchdown.

Encouraged by the showing against Princeton, with his Harvards losing only by three points, Dick Harlow was ready to start an intensive week's work at Soldiers Field this afternoon for the invasion of Army on Saturday.

Despite its defeat by Notre Dame in New York last Saturday Harvard scouts reported that the Cadets are a first class eleven, which will be in a very aggressive mood as a result of the Irish episode.

Army always points for Notre Dame, and a defeat at the hands of its old rival annually seems to inspire the Soldiers to play their best football of the year in ensuing games. Hence Harvard's need to do effective work this week.

PRINCETON LUCKY

Harvard wasn't lucky to come as close to winning as it did. Princeton was fortunate to escape defeat.

Harvard likely would have provided the season's biggest upset, but for one Tiger answering to the name of Bob Peters. It might have done so, despite even Peters, if it had had its own best ball carrier, Capt. Torbie Macdonald, in there, or a standout passer.

How come this amazing about face which came so close to giving the Harvard-vards a triumph when they were supposed to be slaughtered?

Several reasons suggest themselves.

One is that the new backfield setup which has Spreyer at tail instead of fullback, Heiden at full rather than at wing and Lee in the wingback instead of the tailback berth, was what the Harvard offense needed to click.

POINTS FOR BIG THREE

Another is that Harlow always aims for the Princeton and Yale games and his teams invariably look much better against "big three" foes than against any other rivals.

Still another is that the Don Her-ring tragedy robbed the Tigers of much of their spark and more of their power.

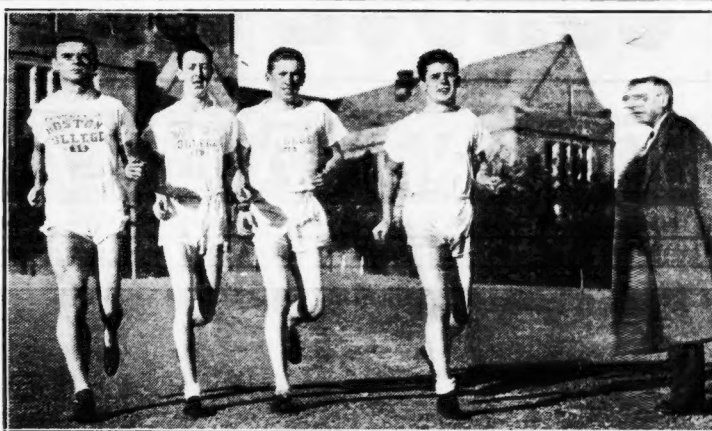

All these factors probably had something to do with the Crimson's "moral victory."

In every department of play except passing they held their own with a very formidable Tiger. And, in our book, now that they've found the knack, they'll keep on improving and plague the life out of Army and Yale.

Bog Cars to Race At Topsfield Track

Outstanding auto drivers of the big car eastern racing circuit will come to Topsfield Fair Grounds next Saturday for the final races of the 1939 season, with the feature grind over 15 miles.

Bob Gardner of Cohasset, New England champion; Eddie Castorline, Malden, Sonny Martin, Bangor, Me., Mal Douglas, Taunton, and Leroy Stone, Newmarket, N. H., are some of the drivers entered.

Brockton, Lawrence, Medford Lead Pack in School Grid Race

By MICHAEL GILLOOLY

In case you're wondering, that deep blush around Malden sq. this past week-end wasn't caused by radicals hanging red flags. It was merely the backward blushes of the high school followers who saw their team dumped unmercifully from the undefeated ranks.

After almost a quarter of a century, Somerville turned the trick that had evaded its grasp all these years, and in a most convincing manner.

Going into the game which later developed into the biggest upset among the school corps this campaign, Malden still retained a slight possibility of capturing the state title. All of these hopes were now buried deep in the turf of Dilboy Field—some of Malden's elimination from the pennant chase.

TRIO IN TITLE RACE

Twice previously, the Golden Tornado had participated in scoreless ties. These contests didn't have the theory of the power of the Golden Tornado line but the bubble club dropping from the undefeated ranks, leaving only three major suburban schools to battle for the mythical crown. In order, the contenders stand as Brockton, Lawrence and Medford.

OLD RIVALS CLASH
The Artisans eliminated South Boston in a one-sided affair last week-end while English was holding B. C. High to a scoreless tie. If Coach Dutch Holland's outfit passes the Blue and Blue test, the route to the championship appears wide open.

Private schools steal into the spotlight Wednesday and Saturday with traditional rivals meeting. At Southboro Wednesday, St. Mark's plays host to an undefeated, untied and unscored upon Gorton club that lists Boston English among its victims while Saturday, Andover will invade New Hampshire for its annual tussle with Exeter.

Exeter is unbeaten in six games while Andover has lost but one decision, that to the Harvard freshmen.
